Photos Depict Mars As Bleak as Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 6 televised spectacular close-ups of tortured terrain on Mars Thursday night, scenes of crater-pocked desolation strikingly similar to landscapes on the moon.

The tiny space voyager, on a mission to end centuries of speculation over whether the mysterious red planet would support life, skimmed to within 2,130 miles then sent Earthward a string of most-detailed-ever photos.

The profusion of huge jagged craters, many with smaller craters inside, seemed to indicate that if Mars has life at all in the areas pictured it could be only minute.

The shots showed thin canal-like lines, what appeared to be mountainous highlands, precipitous scarps, meandering rills believed to be cracks, and scattered rubble — all similar to photos of the moon.

The area pictured was a dark equatorial band that some scientists had thought might have vegetation because it changes color seasonally. Another theory is that the change is due to sunlight hitting rocks at a different angle at different times of the Martian year.

The televised picture show was confusing as viewed on monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Initial pictures were an hour late due to trouble in running the spacecraft's signals through a computer.

The relay delay was due, a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, to a missing element in the signal sent from the spacecraft that made a computer unable to process the pictures.

The first shot received, about 6:30 p.m. PDT, showed an area of Mare Erythraeum, a bleak desert area pocked with craters, the largest two or three miles across. The whole shot covered about 50 miles.

The spacecraft's two cameras, one with a telescopic lens to show objects as small as a football stadium, were programmed for 12 pictures each. They were aimed at equatorial deserts and dark areas that some scientists believe could be vegetation.

The equatorial belt was chosen for its variety of Martian terrain features.

Later pictures in the series also were heavily marked with craters. No. 9 showed one deep, with a smaller one inside. No. 10 looked as if pepper had been sprinkled on it, showing two quite large pits, perhaps five miles across.

A spokesman said that examination of more distant pictures taken by Mariner 6 on Wednesday disclosed a crater 300 miles across, with

Film Shows 'Magnificent Desolation'

● Next moonwalk can be doubled, Armstrong says. Page 6

HOUSTON (AP) — Spectacular color pictures taken by men on the moon were released Thursday by the space agency and show why the Apollo 11 astronauts called the lunar terrain "magnificent desolation" with "a stark beauty all its own."

In pictures taken on the surface, the gold, white and black colors of the ungainly lander ship clearly stand out, as do the astronauts, devices and flag they left behind.

The pictures show an eerie, unreal world with a coal-black sky and rugged grey terrain that turns almost white like snow where the sun reflects off it.

In a six-minute color motion picture film shown to television viewers Thursday night, Armstrong and Aldrin were shown saluting the American flag. The camera was shooting pictures at the rate of one frame per second, making the moon men's movements look like an old-fashioned movie. Their movements were fast and jerky on the film.

Tel Offer Finds Cool Reception

It may not be good enough.

This was the warning from telephone workers in Victoria Thursday night as they reacted to the formula hailed by their own leaders as a means of ending the B.C. Telephone Co. strike.

Ken John, a spokesman for the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers in Victoria, said initial reaction to the proposed agreement was "rather disappointing."

PLANT LOCAL
"If all we're going to get is what we've been told so far we're going to get, there is a chance the membership won't go for it," said Mr. John, president of the federation's plant local here.

He was quick to add, however: "We haven't heard the full details yet. And that may well change the picture."

Those details, contained in the agreement signed in Vancouver Thursday by union and company officials, will be spelled out at a

Presidential Hopes Dashed by Mishap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Theodore Sorenson, a long-time adviser to the Kennedy brothers, said in a television interview Thursday that Edward Kennedy recognizes his presidential prospects have been "damaged, if not destroyed" by the tragic auto accident he was involved in last month.

Sorenson said Kennedy felt that if he had continued to be available for the presidency, it would "add to more hate mail, more conflicting pressures, more speculation as to his motives. He simply would be more comfortable out."

Wheat Pricing In New Crisis

LONDON (CP) — New anxiety over a heightening transatlantic clash on wheat selling prices was reported in Canadian quarters following the European Common Market decision to push up export subsidies immediately to match previous price cuts by both Canada and the United States.

Senior officials of the major wheat-exporting countries meet in a Canada House conference hall today in an attempt to end the market-stealing and competitive price slashes. There had been hope, at least among Canadian authorities, that the Common Market would not implement higher subsidies before the conference opened.

The concern among these authorities was that the Americans, confronted by this fresh price challenge from Europe, might initiate another round of price cutting to maintain an edge in the sale of surplus wheat in a shrinking world market. With North America, Europe

What Is a Woman?

Oldest Question Posed For Court's Decision

LONDON (AP) — The son of Britain's former chief Boy Scout has asked a court to decide whether the beautiful model he married six years ago is just one of the girls or is really a man.

A lawyer said Arthur Cameron Corbett, 43, contends that tall, raven-haired April Ashley, 34, is a man and their marriage should be annulled. He said Miss Ashley insists she is a woman and will oppose the suit.

The case raises tremendous legal and medical questions, including "perhaps the oldest question in the world — what is a woman?" James Cornyn, Miss Ashley's lawyer, told Justice Alan Orr Thursday.

Miss Ashley began life as George Jamieson and shipped out as a deckhand on a British merchant ship after leaving school. But she had herself legally declared a woman following a series of sex-change operations in Casablanca in 1960.

As April Ashley — 34-24-36 when she was a popular London fashion model — she met Corbett, heir to Lord Rowallan, former chief Boy Scout and governor of Tasmania.

Cornyn told the court Thursday the case would involve a great deal of expert evidence concerning Miss Ashley's medical condition at various times. He asked that the hearing be put back about a month from the scheduled Nov. 10. Justice Orr withheld decision.

Three Safe, Two Die In Cave-In

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — Using hands and the only shovel available, workers rescued three men from a mine cave-in, where two other men died Wednesday, 240 miles west of Edmonton.

Rod McLeod, 56, of East Coulee, Alta., and a man from Germany were killed. Their bodies were recovered a short time after the accident. The second man's name was not available.

The cave-in occurred, as the men prepared to place timber in an excavation, 13 feet deep into the side of a hill, when a section of the hillside collapsed. The section was about six feet thick and estimated to weigh about 30 tons.

The photos built up a line at a time on the laboratory's television monitors and arrived one every five minutes after crossing 58,000,000 miles of space.

Experts have said they don't expect Mariner to tell them whether there is life, only if it is possible.

Before the flyby, a device to analyse Mars' lower atmosphere, by measuring radiation from its chemical elements, failed. Experts called this a minor loss.

The sister spacecraft Mariner 7, flying five days behind on a similar mission, has duplicate equipment.

Wheat Crisis

and Australia's holding large wheat surpluses, charges and counter-charges have flown across the Atlantic, each side blaming the other for breaching the floor price under the three-year International Grains Arrangement.

At a Washington meeting earlier this month, the major exporters almost reached agreement to stay out of each other's markets and to stabilize prices.

HAVE PRICES

Informants said, however, that the six-country Common Market demanded that in return for a promise to stay out of Canadian and American wheat markets in the Pacific region, the two North American producers should agree to share the size of their recent price cuts on lower wheat grades.

Canada and the U.S. refused and the Common Market then threatened to increase the size of its own export subsidies, in the form of larger rebates, to make European wheat as attractive in price as that shipped from North America.

The Americans, with a heavy surplus and a larger treasury to back export policy, were angered when it became evident that the Common Market was offering grains with various concessions in markets normally served by U.S. shippers.

The U.S., followed by Canada, cut wheat prices on the Eastern Seaboard but not on the Pacific, much to the annoyance of Japan, a big buyer, which demanded equivalent price treatment before it would buy more wheat either from North America or Europe.

The Common Market decision to grant higher subsidies immediately will be carefully scrutinized at today's conference to see where, exactly, the more attractive prices are aimed.

One Brussels report suggests the largest of the higher subsidies are linked with shipments to African countries, Central America and Poland which normally are not large markets for North American wheat.

Canadian authorities are hopeful that the representatives at today's meeting will agree to establish a watchdog group to scrutinize barter concessions, freight rates and other inducements which might serve as instruments for a price war and to ensure no major exporter steps out of line in making an unfair attempt to grab off another competitor's market.

There is some doubt among the experts that this approach will end the transatlantic squabbling but they feel an urgent attempt must be made to restore export harmony or they will be faced with the alternative of a complete collapse of marketing stability.

Paris Makes New Waves

PARIS (UPI) — Defence Minister Michel Debre Monday stirred a fresh commotion in political circles by affirming that the new French government will fully comply with nationalist guidelines laid down by Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Fargo Dealers Stung

FARGO, N.D. (CP) — The sanitation department sprayed malathion over the entire city earlier this week in an effort to control heavy mosquito infestation.

The immediate effect of the insecticide was to infect cars in the city with a hitherto unknown disease.

A check of car dealers showed that the spray spotted cars, eating through the outer finish. When rubbed, the paint came right off.

Goodwin Hoff, the man in charge of the mosquito control program, was surprised by the damage to cars — but that wasn't all.

"We have also received a number of calls that the spraying didn't kill any mosquitoes," he said.

meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Victoria Curling Club, Quadra Street.

The 300 local members will vote on the offer afterward. They will be urged to support it by the federation's three general secretaries, who will attend the meeting.

Similar meetings are scheduled for Campbell River, Nanaimo and the mainland.

The votes taken at these meetings will tell whether the 6,800 workers agree with their negotiating committee.

JUNE START

Times of the various meetings were not immediately known. It was understood the results of the vote would not be made known on a regional basis, but only as a whole, possibly by Monday.

The strike began June 23. The agreement followed 10 hours of bargaining under the personal guidance of federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey and labor department officials.

WAGE BOOST

It offers the workers a 19.84-per-cent wage increase over two years. The union originally sought 32 per cent and the company reluctantly agreed earlier to the 17.5 per cent recommended by a federal conciliation board.

There is a wide range of the current wage scale. Company vice-president Gordon MacFarlane said the agreement is essentially the same as the offer made Tuesday.

ACROSS BOARD

This would provide an immediate 12-per-cent across-the-board wage hike effective the day the contract was signed and another 7 per cent across the board next Jan. 1.

There would also be a reduction in the work week for plant employees from 40 to 37½ hours next Jan. 1.

Both union and company officials had praise for the labor minister. They said his presence proved of great assistance in working out details.

Mr. Mackasey has been gaining a reputation for his ability to help bring satisfactory endings to labor disputes.

When he decided to come to the West Coast to "do some fishing," it was known he was also interested in the strike threat that hangs over the B.C. ports.

Talks were continuing as the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union contract with the B.C. Maritime Employers Association expired Thursday at midnight.

The critical issue remaining is money. The last offer was 70 cents an hour over two years on the base rate of $3.83. The union has asked for pay of $51 a shift.

In another development, miners employed in the Interior by Bethlehem Copper Corp. received a $1.15-an-hour increase over two years, in wages and fringe benefits. Members of the International Operating Engineers, Local 115, and Tunnel and Rock Workers, Local 168, they earned previous rates ranging from $3.05 to $4.13.

Your Good Health

Anti-Smoking Tablet Helpful

By G. T. THORNTON, MD

Dear Dr. Thornton: I would appreciate your comments on an anti-smoking tablet called — Do you know how effective it is, and if it can be harmful? — Mrs. P.M.

I don't know of any pill, medicine or system that will make anyone automatically stop smoking without any effort. Neither do I know of anything harmful in any of the tablets being offered.

The benefit, I think, is largely psychological, but that's important, too. If you think you can give up smoking, that's half the battle.

Dear Dr. Thornton: When I take my glasses off at night, street lights, car lights, etc., look large as a cartwheel and the wheel or circle seems to be filled with bright lights. My husband says the lights look no different to him. So what is wrong with my eyes? — Mrs. S.B.L.

Your refraction defect (what ever requires you to wear glasses) may be corrected by your glasses but causes this cartwheel effect when you take them off. However, you should have your eye pressure checked to make sure glaucoma isn't starting.

Dear Dr. Thornton: Please give your opinion of two blue-eyed people having a brown-eyed child. I say it is impossible. An in-law says it is possible. — Mrs. E.H.

The in-law is correct. It is possible, it has happened, but it is very uncommon. A geneticist could explain why, in terms of genes and heredity, but it's decidedly complicated.

Dear Dr. Thornton: Is the Pap test used for any other reason than detecting cancer? I am 20 and have had irregular periods. I had a test last summer and was notified to have another this winter. It was supposed to show something lacking in my diet. — D.L.

I doubt that it would show anything "lacking in the diet," but the test is useful at times in helping to identify some endocrine (glandular) imbalance.

Dear Dr. Thornton: Does reheating coffee have any ill effects on your health? — Mrs. M.L.B.

No, but it can alter the taste.

A Step Backward

IT IS A PECULIAR commentary on Canadian affairs that in the very week man established an audio-visual link between earth and the moon, plans were being made by Canadian Pacific-Canadian National Telecommunications to drastically curtail direct communication between Vancouver Island and the rest of Canada.

On Monday, July 21 the Colonist learned and subsequently reported that a severe reduction in the hours of service of the CP-CN Telecommunication office in Victoria and other areas would be made on August 1. An almost immediate denial was issued from Toronto through a spokesman for the company in Vancouver substantiated the report.

Some 24 hours later the situation was clarified when the company admitted that its Victoria office would indeed be operating on shorter hours commencing August 1. However, the company added, Victoria residents would be able to continue sending and receiving telegrams via long-distance telephone to Vancouver.

It is interesting to recall it was only a year ago that CP and CN telegraphic services combined their operation in more than 50 cities across Canada. In Victoria this resulted in the CN office being closed down and all business being handled by a single agency.

There was little public criticism of the move and the merged operation continued its 24-hour direct service. Some deterioration in speed and in delivery was noted from time to time but by and large complaints were not of a serious nature.

However, with direct local telegraphic service to the rest of Canada and the outside world now about to be slashed by approximately 43 hours a week here it is extremely unlikely that residents of Victoria will retain their quiescent attitude for much longer.

Recognizing the fact that this move at best relegates Victoria — despite it being British Columbia's capital city — to the status of a minor satellite of Vancouver in the eyes of both our national telecommunications system and the federal government and at worst leaves its vital link with the outside world in the hands of a Vancouver operator, Victoria city council has already despatched a strong protest to the prime minister, the ministers of defence and consumer and corporate affairs, and to local members of Parliament.

Though there is little hope that council's effort will receive anything more than a cursory glance and a disinterested reply from Ottawa, the Colonist applauds its action and urges it to continue its battle not only in the interests of the residents of this city but on behalf of all citizens of Canada who believe in this day and age of progress that communications on every level should be improved and extended rather than worsened and reduced.

Domestic Arms

THE STATISTICS on gun ownership issued by the presidential commission investigating violence in the United States should sway that country toward greater enforced domestic disarmament. But they may not, for the very reason that the politicians who make the laws will be sensitive to the fact that so many Americans believe they should have guns.

The statistics include that at least a half of U.S. households have one gun or more; that last year civilians owned 90,000,000 guns comprising 35,000,000 rifles, 31,000,000 shotguns and 24,000,000 hand guns; that the number of guns in private possession increased by 5,300,000 in 1968 and almost half of these were hand guns, and that nearly two-thirds of the 12,100 homicides reported in 1968 were the result of gunfire.

The commission under the chairmanship of Dr. Milton Eisenhower would have the federal government and the states act to "reduce the availability of the firearm that contributes the most to the violence" by confiscating most of the pistols and revolvers, restricting ownership to persons who could demonstrate a reasonable need for these weapons. It has recommended that this be accomplished through passage of federal minimum standards which the states would apply, or the federal government itself in the case of a state failing to act within four years.

But it is to be anticipated that there will be resistance to this recommendation, not only because federal restrictions on the states would be distasteful, as a minority of commission members think, but because of the popularity of the hand gun as a supposed means of self-defence. There is no doubt that the quadrupling of sales of hand guns in five years is mainly due to the urban civil disorders in this period, and the desire for self-protection; ironically, however, a commission staff report notes that the buildup of arms, together with the growth of black and white extremist groups, leaves the United States with "a highly explosive combination of fear and firearms."

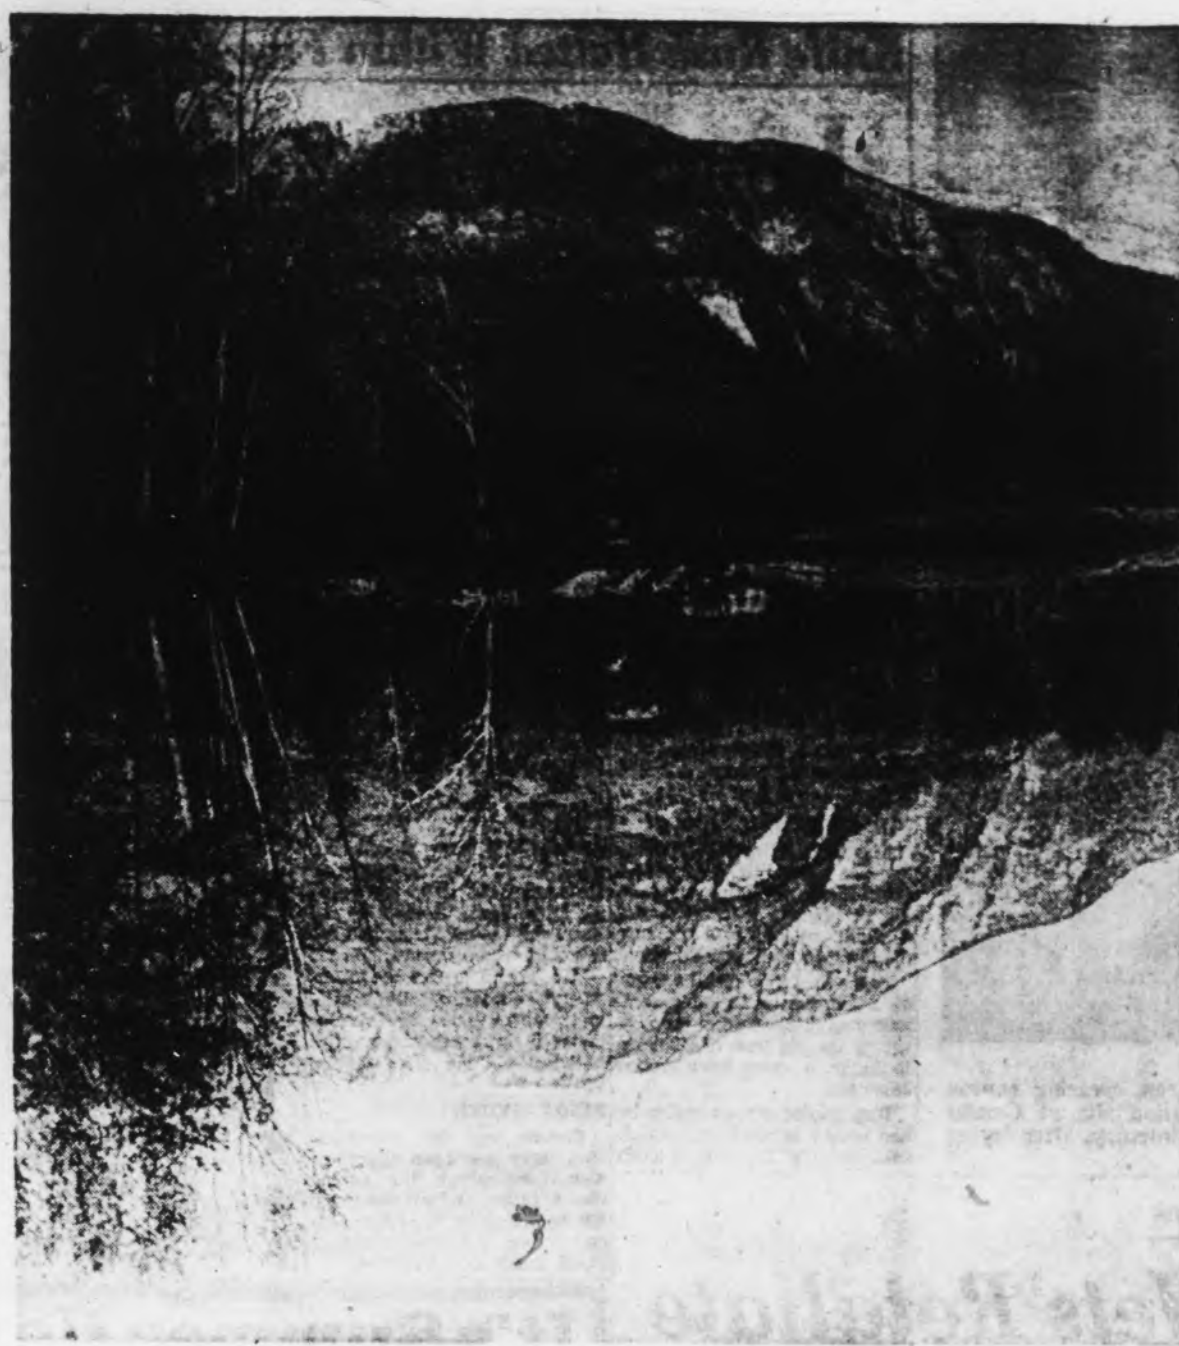

The millions of Americans who have bought guns to protect themselves and their homes obviously are not easily to be persuaded that they should give them up in their own best interests. But the commission has a point in this respect that ought to be heeded—and not alone in the United States.

A person who keeps a gun in his home for defence, the commission says, may actually be placing himself in greater danger. In most cases, the homeowner confronted by an intruder has no warning and little chance to arm himself. But with a gun in the home an American runs a greater risk of becoming a statistic in 23,000 firearms accidents in homes and 8,000 firearms homicides a year.

Trudeau's Trend Towards Dictatorship Shown in Closure 'Gag' of Parliament

DEMONSTRATORS on Parliament Hill called it the beginning of an era of "Liberal fascism." That is, it seems to me, an exaggeration—at least for the time being.

A more fitting term for the system of government Prime Minister Trudeau and his colleagues are moulding is "Trudeocracy."

In other parts of the world this system is sometimes called "guided democracy."

The essence of it is autocratic rule with the trappings of self-government. Parliament is not abolished but its role is downgraded to that of a mere rubber stamp of the ruling clique or individual.

Elections continue to be held at regular intervals but they cease to be free expressions of the political will of the electorate.

An all-pervasive fear, which can be induced by intellectual terror without recourse to the crude methods of a police state, guarantees perpetuation of the autocratic set-up in power.

In plain language, a more or less subtle dictatorship—depending on the sophistication of its practitioners and the social milieu in which they operate—sets up shop behind the facade of democratic institutions and constitutionality.

This, I am afraid, may be the prospect we are facing in the government's decision to ram the Parliament-muzzling Rule 15-C through the Commons by closure.

Many people will no doubt feel and argue that this sort of thing is conceivable in some distant countries which never knew genuine democracy, but not in Canada.

Let's not kid ourselves. In this day and age of "scientific" manipulation, of conditioned Pavlovian reflexes, of unprincipled, cowardly self-deceptions and decadent abstractions, it can happen anywhere.

With the rape of Parliament it is, in fact, already happening here.

What's more, the process of transition from a system of parliamentary democracy to a "Trudeocracy" has been going on for quite a while. It started the moment the bewitched Trudeauautocrats gave their idol the power he was seeking when he selected the Liberal Party as his political tool.

For those who did not bother to read Pierre Elliott Trudeau's writing but did not succumb to blind adulation, the first glimpse of his autocratic tendencies came before last year's election when he told one of his press conferences that in his interpretation of our political system the prime minister "is the nearest thing to a dictator ..."

This alone should have been a warning, but hardly anybody paid any attention, just as hardly anyone paid attention to his admiration for Machiavelli and "that superb strategist, Mao Tse-tung."

Yet these where clear signs of the shape and direction his regime would take.

Once elected, the prime minister started implementing the dictatorial concept of his office, concentrating on downgrading the role and function of Parliament.

His regional desks, his rota system for cabinet ministers, his transfer of the control of the purse to standing committees which he could easily control, soon fell into a pattern of snubbing and bypassing the Commons.

By last December Mr. Trudeau apparently thought that he had weakened the institution sufficiently to impose a permanent gag on it.

The Rule 15-A stratagem did not come off at that time.

The intention of the impatient autocrat was too clearly displayed and the country did not like what it saw. The suddenly alarmed public had to be put to sleep again.

Hence the six months pause before a new, more sophisticated and more insidious try. Hence also the choice of the summer holiday season for dealing a mortal blow to Parliament while countless people are away from their homes and in no mood to pay much attention to what is happening in Ottawa.

It was a shrewdly planned move. When the opposition parties spoiled its smooth and unobtrusive execution by standing up in rare unanimity to fight it, the prime minister called their anguished defence the essence of the democratic process "a stupid filibuster."

Vietnamese Need U.S. Reassurance

AS President Nixon left on his round-the-world trip the unofficial word put a stop in Vietnam as almost inevitable. The reason: to calm President Nguyen Van Thieu's nervous tremors over the Ameri-

All the prepackaged speeches, notes, memoranda the president took with him sound the same theme — the United States intends to maintain military power in Asia. These words will be coated with the rhetoric of peace and unity. But they will carry, nevertheless, the main thrust of the mission, which is to quiet the fears of an abrupt withdrawal from Vietnam as evidence of neo-isolationism.

As the euphoric glow over the announced withdrawal of the first 25,000 American combat troops subsides, the hazards of the pullout have sent a chill through the president's foreign policy advisers. What no one is able to say with any real confidence is whether the Thieu government can survive. A principal doubter, it is reported, and therefore urging a cautious slowdown in the withdrawal rate is Henry A. Kissinger, assistant to the president for national security affairs. Although he frets at accounts putting him over Secretary of State William P. Rogers in influence, his counsel — he is constantly at Mr. Nixon's elbow — carries a weight that cannot be discounted.

In his article last January in Foreign Affairs, written before he was named to the Nixon White House, Kissinger uttered a solemn warning of the perils ahead in negotiating a peace. He cautioned against the United States becoming involved in South Vietnam's internal political arrangements. Suggesting the U.S. would end up pressuring the Thieu government for an accommodation, he wrote:

"The result may be the complete demoralization of Saigon, profound domestic tensions within the United States and a prolonged stalemate or a resumption of the war."

Increasingly, the evidence indicates that the Thieu government is narrowing rather than broadening its base. The restriction seems to reflect the fear that only by digging in behind the armed forces, with no dissent allowed, can the regime survive.

A series of articles from Vietnam by Richard Doudman in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch details the way in which critics even moderate critics have been thrown into jail or driven into exile. Mildly critical newspapers hinting at the need for a broader base have been closed down. Granted the country is fighting a ruthless enemy, nevertheless there should be some manifestation of a larger trust in a government in office for nearly three years.

A recent dispatch to The New York Times told of an exodus of South Vietnamese seeking safety abroad and paying bribes of between $1,500 and $5,000 for exit visas.

The expectation was that the White House would announce early in August a second troop withdrawal, probably in excess of the initial 25,000. This is now in doubt. If and when the announcement comes it is likely to be in terms of a much slower phase-out. The reasoning will be that a new Communist offensive can be expected, and the South Vietnamese army is not prepared as yet to meet such an offensive.

Behind the vaguely hopeful generalities that is the thrust of what Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is saying in public since returning from a four-day survey in Vietnam. Presumably it is what he is telling the president in private. And it is a good guess this is the assurance President Nixon will give to President Thieu.

It is an old record played several times in the past nine months. On the hit parade it might be called the Lullaby Lull. Military men, whether in Saigon or in the Pentagon, have insisted each time there has been a Communist withdrawal to the north that it is solely for the purpose of regrouping and resupply, with no political significance whatsoever. Since it portends a new offensive, American commanders have no choice but to meet strength with strength.

Here is a fundamental difference between the men in uniform and the former negotiating team at the Paris peace talks. Averell Harriman, the chief negotiator, and his deputy, Cyrus R. Vance, were convinced in October-November last year and again in January that a large Communist withdrawal to the 22nd parallel in the North meant de-escalation. They argued in vain for swift response by the United States.

Behind the military reading of the current lull is an ominous shadow. As expressed by Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) it is the spectre of a new escalation of the war that can bring victory. That has been background music in each lull recording.

A related theme is that if it were not for the constraints applied by timid civilians such as Robert S. McNamara, the U.S. could have wiped out North Vietnam long ago. This was put in so many words by Admiral U.S. Grant Sharp, retired commander of Asian forces. It is the stab-in-the-back theme sounded by the German military after the First World War as a curtain-raiser for the Nazi conquest.

Inside Europe

Paris Ducks Onus On ECM Expansion

By OTTO von HABSBERG
Colonial Special Correspondent

THE new French government, headed by Jacques Chaban Delmas, has been well received by European public opinion. The presence of men like Maurice Schumann and Valéry Giscard d'Estaing is considered as an opening towards Europe. There is clearly a will for a new beginning which justifies the hope for an end to the present period of frustration.

The commentators mainly had the departure of General de Gaulle, considered for years as the arch-enemy of progress. That this is far from true, does not inconvenience the manipulators of public opinion, who accuse France for the political obstructionism of that consistent francophile, Dutch Foreign Minister Luns.

The systematic day-by-day campaign has conditioned the masses to consider General de Gaulle the sole real obstacle in the path of continental unity. He thus has become the ideal excuse for any anti-European manoeuvre of procrastination.

This is the reason why, while the press cheered after April 28, political circles were strangely reserved. The most violent anti-Gaullist seemed thunderstruck. Their allied having vanished, they multiplied cautious declarations inviting everybody not to expect sudden miracles. Things would not change within hours, we are now told, while before we were promised that, with de Gaulle gone, all questions would be resolved without delay.

At this hour there is still the pretext of the impending German elections. But September 28 is not far off. And then results must be shown.

The new French government benefits from the difficulties of its enemies. Responsible ministers have stated that they would go as far as their partners wish, on condition, of course, that their proposals would not destroy what has already been attained. Paris has thus passed the buck. Henceforth the other European nations, but especially the five EEC partners of France, carry the responsibility.

Now the practical situation is not as simple as it has been described. There are hostile forces in every country, especially bureaucracies unwilling to relinquish their positions, privileges and benefits. Demagogues on the issue of Britain's entry into the Common Market are out, while one has to cope with the practical issues of a wavering sterling and of a common agricultural policy. Furthermore one will have to take up the problems at the beginning, in other words to make a new start in the sense of "selective integration," as suggested by Louis Armand.

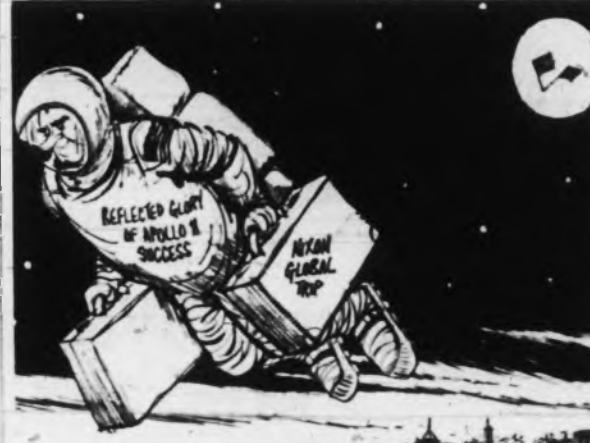

The self-styled "grand Europeans" have now their hour of truth. They will use all their credit if they do not produce spectacular advances soon. The public, fooled for a long time, will begin to ask questions. President Pompidou's France presents a real challenge to Europe. Soon we shall see if its partners are able to face it.

Nixon Sets Stage for Post-Vietnam Policy

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Paris

President Nixon's current trip is chiefly interesting as a gauge of American policy after Vietnam. It suggests an eventual move from a policy based on dependent mini-states to a policy based on the great powers of Asia.

As it happens, the Pacific is more and more becoming a point of convergence for the great powers. In the United States influence is steadily passing to the West Coast. In Russia, vast natural resources and the challenge of China combine to heighten the importance of Siberia and the Pacific ports.

Japan is already the world's third-ranking country, and despite Mao and the cultural revolution, China, with its vast internal market and the implicit that has produced nuclear weapons, will probably rank with Japan at the end of the century.

A mild foretaste of the colossal possibilities implicit in the convergence of Pacific powers is afforded by the rich bounty reaped from good relations between the United States and Japan.

But even these relations, not to mention Washington's ties with Moscow and Peking, are now complicated by the American role in the petty states fringing the Asian mainland.

These states — South Korea, Formosa, South Vietnam, Thailand, Laos, Malaysia, and Singapore — looked for a long time like ideal candidates for American protection.

Geography made it possible to defend them against China by limited deployment of air and sea power. Timeliness made it possible for American economics assistance to have a dramatic impact.

But even the American Gulliver has not been able to solve the political problems of the Asian mini-states.

Washington has not rid the Philippines of deeply corruption, nor sorted out the ethnic mess of Malaysia, nor made Chinese nationalists welcome to Formosa patriots, nor given secure constitutional rule to South Korea and Thailand.

On the contrary, American support, by making it possible to avoid realties for a time has led to an aggravation of internal political problems. In some cases, the inner rift has made countries vulnerable to Communist subversion.

And in the case of Vietnam, the United States felt able to head off the Communists only through a major war with a large-scale commitment of American troops on the Asian mainland.

The lesson of Vietnam is that the policy of fortified mini-states does not work. Not only does it fail to crush communist insurgency but it fosters a more militant spirit in China, and gets in the way of more harmonious relations with both Russia and Japan.

What is required now is a new security system for Asia. In such a system the mini-states would not be protected by only one power but guaranteed by a balance among the United States, Russia, China, and Japan.

Such a system is plainly years away. Still it represents the goal to which sensible efforts in Asia should tend at this time. And in that respect President Nixon's trip is a good beginning.

Vietnam is treated as just another country — not, as in President Johnson's trips, as the centre of world gravity. Attention is being focussed on some countries that have not even supported the war there — Indonesia, India, and Pakistan.

Most important of all, the trip is bracketed with gestures of conciliation towards China. Just before leaving Washington, Nixon approved liberalization of rules governing trade and visits to Peking.

He winds up his trip in Romania — the country most eager to promote better relations between Washington and Peking.

Even so the trip is largely atmospheric and personal publicity.

There may be a point in making an indent for a new Asian security system, but the real way to set that change in motion is to push hard — much harder than so far — for an agreement at the Vietnamese peace talks here in Paris.

Rule 75-C Shatters Commons Harmony

By LUBOR ZINK, from Ottawa

All is quiet on Parliament Hill after last week's midsummer madness. But not all is well with the place. Standing in the empty green chamber of the Commons, one can feel the ghosts of the prime minister's unprecedented and unforgivable insults of the institution bouncing off the stone walls and crawling into the carved woodwork, there to wait for flesh and blood reincarnation when the new session starts at the end of October.

It's sure to be a hell of a session, unless the government sobers up from its drunkenness with the arbitrary power it has usurped while the nation was too busy holidaying and gazing at the moon to pay attention to the political robbery in Ottawa.

The chances of that happening are slim. In his disdain for parliament the prime minister has gone too far to change his course without losing face. And even if he tried to back down a bit, the damage done to the Commons is too great to be undone while he and his regimented cabinet remain in office.

The tragedy of it all is that it need not have happened. For well over a decade no government has had a more responsible, reasonable and co-operative Opposition than the Trudeau government has. In all probability there never has been a more moderate, gentle, government-accommodating leader of the official opposition than Robert Stanfield. The events of last week have beaten the meekness out of him.

Until Trudeau's decision to change the rules of the House unilaterally, and thereby change the very nature of the system of government in Canada, the atmosphere in the Commons was, with a couple of insignificant exceptions, one of rare working harmony. The result was a major streamlining of parliamentary procedure and the passage, at the time of the planned adjournment, of all the important legislation put before the House by the government.

The two exceptions to the exemplary spirit of co-operation in dealing with the government's legislative program were the debates of the controversial amendments of the Criminal Code and the Official Languages Bill.

On those two occasions some of the opposition members, considering it their political duty and moral obligation to register the strong views of their constituents on these issues, prolonged debate beyond what the prime minister and some of his colleagues may have regarded as a reasonable limit.

But even with these alleged filibusters the business of the nation, as conceived and managed by the Trudeau regime, suffered no harm. The House agreed to extended sitting hours to clear up the programmed items on the order paper on schedule.

Yet the government used those two extended debates, which may well have provided a safety valve for a potentially serious political trouble, as a pretext for introducing and ramming through the parliament-muzzling Rule 75-C.

When the opposition parties cried out in unison against the dictatorial measure and stayed on to fight it instead of going on holiday, the government presented it to the public as an example of wanton obstructionism. After only three incomplete sitting days the prime minister called the debate of the fundamentals of the democratic process "a stupid filibuster."

This was a gross misrepresentation of the issue, for apart from the ridiculous assertion that three days of debate constitute a filibuster, the opposition was not fighting a legislative measure but the government's unilateral change of the rules of parliament which are the prerogative of all its members.

This misrepresentation was compounded by the prime minister when he said: "The opposition parties contend . . . that the opposition possesses the right to debate, and by debating indefinitely . . . a minority of the members of the House have the right to block for indefinite periods the wishes of the majority of Canadians as expressed in general elections."

Two of the several twists in these assertions should be obvious.

First of all, it is simply not true that the opposition parties (who together represent 55 per cent of the electorate) can stall any legislative measure indefinitely, even if they wanted to. The opposition can, and indeed it must, try to delay the passage of what it considers bad legislation so that the public may have a chance to express its views.

If it fails to rally a convincing support for its stand, the opposition loses its fight. The "filibuster" either peters out, as it did in the case of the Criminal Code amendments and the Official Languages Bill, or the government ends it, with full justification, by closure, as it did in the flag debate.

Secondly, there is a world of difference between the government's exercise of its mandate to seek parliamentary approval of its legislative program and an attempt to dictate the rules under which parliament operates.

By mixing these two vastly different issues Trudeau may have temporarily succeeded in confusing the public but the truth will out. The danger is that the realization of what has happened may come too late to stop the Trudeauists from dealing a whole series of crippling blows to our freedoms.

Kuznetsov Points Up Soviet Problem

Only the Elite Defects

By PETER BUCKLEY, from London

The defection of novelist Anatoly Kuznetsov during a working visit to London again exposes one of the problems created by the way the Soviet Union sees fit to treat its subjects.

It can be summed up in an epigram coined for the occasion: "If only the elite are allowed abroad, only the elite will defect."

such as those from East Germany and other countries bordering the West, are virtually impossible since the Soviet Union is isolated geographically from non-Communist states. Where it isn't, man-made barriers seal the borders.

The result is that most defections from the Soviet Union are important.

As in the case of Kuznetsov, the defector is a person driven to such a point of frustration and despair that he will forsake family and friends, a position among the elite which has allowed him to travel abroad, and the hope of a tranquil pursuit of his career.

Few of the more prominent defectors appear to settle in the West with ease. Enormous differences of language, culture and customs — and that particular homesickness which the Russian is said never to lose — make defection a last resort for the discontented.

Kuznetsov's decision undoubtedly reflects in more concrete fashion some of the discontent among Soviet intellectuals reported by Western correspondents in Moscow in the last three years and particularly since the invasion of Czechoslovakia a year ago.

He is quoted as saying the invasion "shocked the whole of the Soviet intelligentsia, the great majority of whom are today opposed to the Soviet regime."

Whether or not that statement is an exaggeration resulting from Kuznetsov's own disaffection, the novelist's decision to remain abroad is among the most dramatic evidence yet of the depth of intellectual feeling about the Czechoslovak invasion.

As such, it could well produce more of the repression of literary freedom in the Soviet Union which drove Kuznetsov out.

THE PICK OF Punch

"All right, deep down it's a cry for psychiatric help — but at one level it's a stick-up."

Kuznetsov, a restless figure working on the unhappy fringes of the Soviet literary establishment, joins a short but imposing list headed by Stalin's daughter Svetlana, writer Valery Tarsis, dancer Rudolf Nureyev and various secret police officers and scientists.

Are there no ordinary citizens — the Ivan Ivanovichs of Russian folklore — in the list? The answer is basically, No. Ivan doesn't get the chance and might not take it if he did.

The Soviet government may be angry about the loss of Kuznetsov, one of the most important young Soviet writers, but it can take considerable satisfaction from the fact that such losses are rare.

The system is designed to prevent defections. Only those considered politically "safe" are given the necessary papers and foreign currency for travel abroad.

They normally leave behind members of their immediate families to encourage their return.

Bonn Admits to Tests Of U.S. Nerve Gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Richard McCarthy (D-N.Y.) contended Thursday the United States has been supplying the West German army with small amounts of nerve gas for testing purposes.

McCarthy, who said his information came from a reliable, non-government source, said the arrangement has been in effect for "several years."

He told a news conference he did not know what type of tests were involved and whether they were being conducted in laboratories by scientists or in the field by troops.

He said West Germany had asked this year for a "larger quantity" of nerve gas.

"I state categorically that we have supplied them with small quantities of nerve gas for testing," declared McCarthy, a frequent and prominent critic of the Pentagon's chemical and biological warfare program.

(In Bonn, a West German defence ministry spokesman said the West German armed forces have received small amounts of gas from the United States at various times for test purposes.)

The spokesman said the gas was needed to test gas warning equipment such as that carried on Leopard tanks, and to test gas masks and methods of neutralizing gas.)

Informed of the West German announcement, McCarthy told a reporter the explanation "sounds reasonable" but that it also raised some serious questions.

"It leaves open whether the arrangement infringes on the West European protocol and whether such shipment has been cleared with other NATO nations," McCarthy said.

BASIC ISSUE

"But the broader and most basic issue," he said, "is whether the United States should give chemical and biological warfare agents, regardless of their amounts, to other countries."

"I regard them as similar to nuclear weapons, which by American law, prevent us from giving to other nations."

The defence department recently acknowledged it has stored nerve gas on Okinawa. Following disclosure of an accident which injured several military personnel and triggered protests from Japan, the Pentagon announced it was withdrawing the weapons.

Runaway Tank Cars Kill 29 in Crash

BELGRADE (UPI) — Police said Thursday 29 persons were killed and 17 injured in a collision Wednesday night in which three huge runaway tank cars smashed into a passenger train on a Yugoslav mountain peak.

The force of the impact of the 40-ton tankers loaded with industrial oil was so great that the 32-foot-long lead car of the two-unit passenger train was crushed into a six-foot long hunk of scrap, authorities said.

Rescue teams worked throughout the night to free the dead and injured from the mangled cars of the train. By late Thursday only 18 persons had been identified.

Police said the tank cars broke away from a freight train performing switching operations at Gostivar station and travelled eight miles before smashing into the passenger train. The accident occurred along the eastern slope of Sar Planina, one of Yugoslavia's highest peaks, in the Rodopes mountains of Macedonia.

An immediate investigation was begun and one of the first moves was the detaining of Gostivar station officials while investigators searched for possible evidence of negligence.

Spy's Getaway Driver Foils U.K. Extradition

DUBLIN (UPI) — Sean Bourke, a 34-year old Irish convict who helped British master spy George Blake escape from prison, won an appeal Thursday when the Irish supreme court ruled he could not be extradited to Britain.

"I had been sitting on the edge of my seat while judgement was being given but I was confident I would win the case," the burly Irishman said. "It's far better than a possible 15 years in (London's) Brixton Prison."

He carried a suitcase and said, "I had three pairs of underwear, three shirts and three pairs of socks all packed up in case I had to spend the next few months on remand."

"I will have a few pairs (of beer) and after that I will have a few more pairs and then I will have a jolly good booze-up," Bourke said about his immediate plans. "Then I go for a holiday somewhere."

He fought the extradition bid on grounds it was for a political offence. Irish law forbids extradition for political offences.

The British began extradition proceedings last October after Bourke returned to Ireland from Moscow where he had lived since helping Blake escape in 1966.

Bourke was a fellow prisoner of Blake's at Wormwood Scrubs prison in London. After his release, Bourke helped Blake escape, hid him beneath the seat of a panel truck and drove the convicted spy to East Germany and asylum.

Blake received a 42-year sentence in 1961 for giving information to the Soviet Union that was said to have meant death or prison for 40 British agents and destruction of the British spy network in the Middle East.

Nigeria, Biafra Like Papal Mediation Bid

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The throb of tribal drums and the wail of long, hide-covered horns welcomed Pope Paul to the heart of Africa on Thursday for a visit that quickly became a mission to bring peace to Nigeria and Biafra, torn by two years of civil war.

No sooner had the 71-year-old Roman Catholic leader landed here on the north shore of Lake Victoria than both sides in the conflict on Africa's west coast agreed at least to talk about a settlement.

DURING FLIGHT

On his flight from Italy, Pope Paul told correspondents that he intended to bring together today the Nigerian and Biafran delegations who had come to Kampala for his visit.

A high Vatican aide said the Pope was willing to stay in Africa a month if this could pave the way to a Nigerian-Biafran peace. He is scheduled to visit Uganda for three days.

BOTH SIDES

Both delegations have agreed to meet here if invited by the pontiff on President Milton Obote's Uganda.

The official purpose of the Pope's visit was to close the first meeting of African bishops and consecrate the altar of a church dedicated to the first saints and martyrs of black Africa, who died at the end of the 19th century.

ANOTHER ROUND

But the visit, punctuated by the beating of jungle drums and tom-toms, songs dedicated to "His Holiness" and a turnout of around 40,000 people, turned into a full-scale effort to stage another round of Nigerian peace talks.

At Entebbe Airport, Pope Paul was awaited by Chief Anthony Enahoro, one of federal Nigeria's top negotiators, and four African heads of state.

NO BIAFRANS

The Biafrans were not seen at the airport. Possibly they adhered to diplomatic protocol and remained away from official functions because Uganda does not recognize Biafra, which has broken away from Nigeria.

But a dispatch from Owerri, headquarters for Biafra's leadership Information Commissioner Ifegwu Eke, told a news conference Biafra is ready to negotiate peace without preconditions.

In Kampala, Biafra's roving ambassador, Austin Okwu, said he had accepted the Pope's offer to mediate the civil war.

OFFICIAL RADIO

Nigeria's official radio in the last few days rejected mediation by the Pope.

Although federal Nigeria has rejected him as a mediator, Pope Paul has the support of presidents Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia. Both recognize Biafra.

He also received backing from the 44 prelates who closed the first all-Africa bishops symposium. The bishops—including seven cardinals—sent a personal message to the leaders of both sides. The conference also issued a plea that "the fratricidal strife which stains our beloved land be brought to an end."

Moon Encore Much Longer

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11 commander Neil A. Armstrong said Thursday a moon walk period more than twice as long as his two hours and 32 minutes would be "reasonable" for the next Americans who go to the moon.

Armstrong made the comment during a briefing for the next moon landing crew and others in the American astronaut corps.

He and his crewmates, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin, spoke from behind a glass wall in the lunar receiving laboratory.

TWO WALKS

Apollo 12 commander Charles Conrad asked Armstrong if he felt two moon walks of longer duration than the one Apollo 11 stroll "was reasonable."

"Neil told him it was," said public affairs officer John McLeish, who is in quarantine with the Apollo 11 crew.

"He (Armstrong) was well satisfied with the pressure suit and associated equipment," McLeish said.

Fifteen astronauts sat on the other side of the glass wall while the Apollo 11 crew made their report. Among them were Conrad's Apollo 12 crewmates, Richard Gordon and Alan Bean.

Legislature Raided

Bengal Police Riot

CALCUTTA, India (Reuters) — Unarmed police broke into the West Bengal state legislative assembly Thursday and smashed chairs, microphones and windows to protest the killing of a policeman Wednesday by a crowd near the Calcutta outskirts.

Ministers of the Communist-dominated United Front government ran as 3,000 policemen, carrying the body of their dead colleague, arrived at the assembly house and burst into the chamber where the assembly was meeting.

The policeman was killed when officers went to investigate trouble among peasants at a village near Basanti, just outside Calcutta.

A crowd surrounded the police and opened fire, killing one policeman and injuring two others.

Angry police rushed into the assembly shouting at the Communist ministers. They rampaged through the building, attacking anyone who came in their way.

The speaker hurriedly adjourned the house as ministers, members, press reporters and visitors fled to safety in different rooms and barricaded the doors against the police.

King Fisherman

Springs Biting in Inlet

King Fisherman entries reflect a good run of spring (chink) salmon in Saanich Inlet in the Mill Bay-Coles Bay waters, mostly in the seven-pound class, but some in the 20s.

The big spring (chink) salmon hit in Cowichan Bay with a 35-lb. pounder taken Thursday morning by John Jeffries of Crofton and at least one other heavier than 30 pounds landed.

Canine Gypsy Found

Foxy has been found. Foxy is a kelpie—a cross between a collie and a wild dingo—who immigrated to Canada only last summer.

And he got the wanderlust again Monday afternoon. Driving through downtown Victoria with his owner Charles Nellies, Foxy took it into his head "to hop out of the car and get lost."

Foxy's picture made Tuesday morning's Daily Colonist and that afternoon many Victorians phoned the Nellies home to report having sighted the gypsy. Mr. Nellies said, "By plotting the location of these sightings, it was possible to see that he was slowly working his way home, and when two calls within five minutes said that he was at Douglas and Hillside during (Tuesday's) rush hour, it was simple enough to drive there and nab him—which we did."

Big Rally Takes Shape

Prices Looked Right For Bargain Hunters

NEW YORK (AP)—Extending its rally, the stock market carved out a strong, broad advance as the Dow Jones industrial average made its best daily rise in three months and advanced near their best lead over declines since mid-1965.

The DJI pushed ahead in late trading to finish up 11.89 at 854.47. The gain was the best since the 16.08 of April 30.

Credited with "helping things out" was Senate approval of an extension of the income tax surcharge for six months.

American Telephone and Telegraph's p.h. the most-active stock, was up 1/2 at 52 1/2. A 300,000-share block of A.T. and T. was traded.

Oils, some of which had fallen sharply recently and "looked good to bargain hunters," were higher.

Occidental Petroleum gained 1 1/2 to 33 1/2. Gulf Oil was up 1/2 at 34 1/2. Atlantic Richfield, up 1/2 at 10 1/2. Royal Dutch Petroleum, up 1/2 at 45 and Standard Oil (Ind.), up 1/2 at 59 1/2.

Steels generally were higher, with Republic gaining 1/2 to 39 1/2. Motors also were higher, with General Motors gaining 1/2 to 72 1/2.

Airfrats, electronics, utilities, metals and chemicals mostly were higher.

Bond Breakfast Creates Interest

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The day when all investment dealers, newspapermen and the like get invited to their annual free breakfast is Monday, Aug. 11.

That's the date chosen by Premier Bennett to divulge the details of the refinancing of the B.C. Hydro Parity Development bonds that fall due Sept. 3.

As usual the Vancouver Hotel is the venue, so that those Victorians who plan to attend the current bond market prices will find it the usual expensive is that the tag will be between breakfast, even if the food is free.

The bonds to be replaced are those of Series "P" which started off in life paying 5 per cent and are now paying 6½ per cent along with the other B.C. parties.

There are $50,505,000 in the issue, and the speculation now is on the rate of interest the premier will announce Aug. 11.

The present guess, based on

Review "despite an inflationary psychology which has greatly compounded the problem of breaking inflation's grip, it is possible to find some evidence to support the idea that monetary and fiscal policies by the Canadian and U.S. government are beginning to take hold."

The B. of M. also notes "new orders and shipments in manufacturing have turned down and exports have slowed markedly while imports continue to be buoyed up by the demand for capital goods."

By gad, sir, reading these comments you would think they were positively rejoicing at the prospect of a good-going depression, with unemployment, distress, misery and gloom, wouldn't you?

After years of affluence, the young men who are running the country today think a change would be good for us. Maybe they're right, but then only a few of them have lived in a period of want and starvation. The older boys could enlighten them.

MONEY COST DROPS

For the first time in many weeks the short term money situation eased in the Thursday auction of Government of Canada treasury bills.

Both their 91 day and 182-day bills fell off from their record highs of a week ago.

The 91-day bills sold to give a yield of 7.62 per cent (against 7.67 per cent last week) and the 182-day bills at 7.78 per cent (against 7.82 per cent last week.)

Famed Hotel Opening All Year

TORONTO (CP) — The Banff Springs Hotel, the fairytale castle nestled in the heart of Canada's most scenic ski country in Alberta, will open its doors for the first time this year to winter guests, it was announced Thursday.

C. G. Burton, executive vice-president of Canadian Pacific Hotels, said the hotel will complete its current summer season in mid-September, close for $500,000 worth of repairs and renovation, and reopen Dec. 5.

The 250-room Banff Springs will then operate on a year-round basis.

Canada Curbs Cash Supply

OTTAWA (CP) — The public money supply—currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits held by the general public—was trimmed last week to a five-month low of $27,369,000,000, the Bank of Canada reported Thursday in its weekly statistical bulletin.

A reduction of $295,000,000 from the previous week was made in the total of currency in circulation and demand deposits in the chartered banks, regarded as the more critical figure. It totalled $8,812,000,000 on July 23.

ANTI-INFLATION

The central bank has been tightening the money supply and credit conditions of the country in an attempt to stem inflation. The publicly-held money supply reached a peak of $28,008,000,000 on July 2.

Further tightening of the banking system was indicated this week. The banks' liquid assets of cash, Bank of Canada deposits, treasury bills, short-term loans and government securities totalled $7,416,000,000 this week compared with $7,431,000,000 last week.

HOLD TO MINIMUM

The banks will be required during August to maintain minimum average deposits in the Bank of Canada totalling $1,095,100,000, increased from $1,063,400,000 in July. They ended

"It's a matter of dollars and cents. Water bombers are not all that superior to men and equipment when it comes to fighting forest fires."

YOU CAN OBTAIN PROFESSIONAL STANDING IN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

In commercial and industrial firms, institutions and governments, professional financial managers hold responsible executive positions. Conversant with tax and financial problems, budgeting and accounting, they have skills that are essential to the proper management of every type of enterprise.

The Certified General Accountants' Association of British Columbia, through its affiliation with the University of British Columbia, offers young men and women an opportunity to become professional financial executives. If you have completed Grade 12 in B.C. or the equivalent elsewhere, you can enrol in a course of study leading to certification as a Certified General Accountant (C.G.A.). This course may be completed either at evening lectures or by correspondence while you remain permanently employed and earn a regular income.

Applications for enrolment for the 1969-70 academic year will be accepted by the Registrar up to September 1, 1969.

Viewpoints Opposed On Water Bomber

"Water bombers are the most effective method of fighting forest fires," according to Liam Conally, project manager of Canadair's brand-new firefighter, CL-215.

"They are nothing but one of many tools used to fight forest fires," said W. C. Phillips, in charge of British Columbia's forest protection branch.

"If called in early enough, water bombers can completely extinguish a forest fire," said Mr. Conally.

"That's impossible," said Mr. Phillips. "You always have to send in men and equipment to follow up the operations of a water bomber."

The two opposing statements were made Thursday afternoon near Patricia Bay Airport, where Canadair was demonstrating its "Amphibious Aerial Firefighter."

While the $1,100,000 plane dumped 1,200 gallons of water, which it had taken aboard by skimming over the surface of nearby Patricia Bay, Mr. Conally explained the advantages of the CL-215.

"It's been built specifically to fight forest fires. There are water bombers, but they are all modified versions of planes which were basically designed for other jobs," he said.

"The CL-215 is the first real water bomber."

Mr. Conally said his Montreal-based firm had already sold 30 planes.

"France has bought 10, and two of them are fighting forest fires in Corsica right at this moment. The province of Quebec has purchased the other 20 planes."

It takes the plane 12 seconds to fill its two 600-gallon tanks. In a day's work, the CL-215 can drop 624,000 pounds of water, according to Mr. Conally.

"In addition to that, it can carry up to 15 firefighters, plus equipment."

Another important factor was the plane's versatility, he said.

"It can land on water, on the ground, and it can even be modified to land on ice. No other plane gives you that range of possibilities."

He said a great number of countries had expressed interest in the CL-215. Actual demonstrations had been given in Spain, Turkey, Greece and France.

Is British Columbia interested in buying one or more of the planes?

"There is interest all right, but no final decisions have been made," he said.

Mr. Phillips was more skeptical.

Youths' Sentences Suspended

Two 18-year-old youths received suspended sentences Thursday for the June 16 theft of examination papers from Esquimalt senior high school. Harvey A. Wanless of 848 Rockhills and Randall G. Brown of 617 Admirals, were placed on an 18-month good-behavior bond. Magistrate William Ostler rebuked the two for trying to cheat by taking unfair advantage of their classmates. "I know the pressure of examinations, but education doesn't consist entirely of passing those examinations," he said. "Education is a joint development of mental power and behavior bond. The two pleaded guilty earlier to a charge of theft and court was told that they entered the school through an open window. They used a passkey to get into the general office and removed a grille on the door of a smaller room used for storage of examination papers. The magistrate said that the theft had been well-planned, but Brown's defense counsel, Joseph McKenna, disagreed. "Brown never thought of the act as a criminal offence. He rather thought of it as a violation of school discipline," Mr. McKenna said.

'GUILTY OF FOLLY' He described Brown as "a leader and a very socialistic youth," who was also "extremely intellectual." Magistrate Ostler replied that this description didn't fit a youth who thought of his offence as a prank. "You are guilty of the most inexplicable folly, and what you have done is a serious criminal offence," he told the youths.

John Geddes, 74, of no fixed address, was sentenced to 20 days in jail after pleading guilty to causing a disturbance.

"If ever there was a problem, this man is it," Magistrate Ostler said.

Court was told that Geddes was arrested Wednesday afternoon after he had fallen asleep in a canoe displayed in Bastion Square.

'TRIED EVERYTHING' Prosecutor John Macintyre said Geddes seemed to have "an extraordinary constitution" enabling him to withstand the constant abuse of his health by excessive drinking.

"We have tried everything, your honor, including sending him back to Scotland from where he came. Nothing has succeeded."

Magistrate Ostler agreed with the prosecutor that Geddes was "as strong as a horse," but would eventually kill himself unless he quit drinking.

"The only thing that deterred the plan to send him to Scotland was the sheer horror of the prospect," he said.

A stay of proceedings was entered in the case of a man charged with keeping a common betting house in Victoria.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said he was acting on the instructions of the attorney-general's department.

Several weeks ago, Vern Geisler of 2580 Prior pleaded not guilty to the charge on behalf of RT Enterprises Ltd. Mr. Geisler was manager of Victoria's first off-track betting shop at 727 Johnson.

The Victoria shop was one of a chain of eight in the province.

'Invasion' of Victoria Planned by Printers

An event which has been billed as the "Cruise to Canada" will involve a one-day invasion of Victoria Sunday by 800 members of the International Typographical Union.

It is strictly a social outing for delegates attending the ITU's 11th annual convention at Seattle from Saturday to Friday.

The unionists will arrive by ferry from Seattle at 12:30 p.m. and before departing the same way five hours later, 700 will have attended a luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

Local ITU officials have arranged presentation of a memento to International President John Pilch of Colorado Springs, who is scheduled to address the luncheon.

They said Thursday the hotel's ballroom would accommodate only 500 and that 200 delegates would eat in the Georgian Lounge and listen to speakers over a public address system.

The province is to be represented by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and the city by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Record Holder Coming

Van Isle Dragways will have a world record holder competing for the first time Sunday when Jim Grant of Burnaby brings his Canadian II to the Cobble Hill strip.

The Canadian II is a highly-modified 1964 Plymouth Valiant strictly used for the standing quarter-mile acceleration test. It has an injected 426 cubic inch Hemi power plant and a B-16 engine and competes in the B-16 class.

AVERAGED 147.21 MPH

Grant, a 26-year-old mechanic, set the world drag racing record for the class early this month in Mission, B.C., with an elapsed time of 9.29 seconds, which is 147.21 mph.

Grant will meet Doug Murray of Nanaimo in a best-of-three match. Murray runs a 1949 Anglia called the Bohemian. It has a 426 cubic inch engine.

A full range of classifications is expected with an entry of more than 125 cars. Gates open at 9 a.m. with time trials from 10:00 to 1 p.m. Eliminations start at 1:30.

Admission charge is $2. There is no charge for children under 12 accompanied by an adult.

Argos Get Too Many Fans Wind Up Short of Points

TORONTO — Toronto Argonauts opened their Canadian Football League season with too many fans and too few points on Thursday night.

Two thousand fans were turned away at CNE Stadium but the 33,135 who got in were disappointed when Tommy-Joe Coffey led Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a 34-7 victory.

Coffey scored two touchdowns, one on a pass from Joe Zuger and the other on a fumble which followed a wide field-goal try, and converted four times for 16 points.

Ed Buchanan, Willie Bethea and rookie Henry Sorrell scored the other Hamilton touchdowns. Bobby Taylor, Mike Eben, Bill Symons and Jim Thorpe scored the Toronto touchdowns. Dave Mann got the other four points with two converts and two points from wide field-goal attempts.

Graham Stilwell of England, conquered Jose Edison Mandarino in straight sets, 6-3, 8-6, 8-6 while Thomas Koch of Brazil outlasted Mark Cox, 4-6, 11-13, 6-3, 8-6, 8-6.

The doubles will be played Friday and the reverse singles on Saturday. The winner of the round will meet the Romanian-Indian winner for the right to challenge the United States at Cleveland, Sept. 19-21.

Argos, quarterbacked for the whole game by Tom Wilkinson, got 435 yards in the air from 23 completions in 45 throws and 113 yards rushing.

The chiefs traded converted touchdowns in the first quarter. Bethea scored on a 17-yard run and Symons scored from a yard after a series of passes.

It was tied, 14-14, at the half. Eben scored on a 16-yard pass play and Coffey on a four-yard pass. Mann missed the convert. Coffey made his try but Mann got the point back late in the quarter on a field-goal try.

After Mann started a third-quarter scoring with a point, Buchanan clicked on a six-yard pass play and Coffey converted the touchdown.

"The boys are capable of playing some good soccer," said Goss. "I hope they will give Manchester a good game."

Tickets are available at Memorial Arena.

He said the teams expect the same concessions from the OHA that was granted the western teams, which the CAHA will allow to use five over-age players this season.

Symes also announced that his league has paid to the OHA a $240 entry fee for six teams, lending weight to his announcement Wednesday that his five-team league would be joined by a sixth this year.

Symes' announcement that his league would return to the OHA followed denials earlier Thursday that this would take place.

Cubs Get Squared Away But Mets Keep Sliding

Chicago Cubs got straightened out, New York

Mets continued to slide and

St. Louis Cardinals had a day off Thursday in major league baseball's most widely-followed division—the National League East.

Their once-frightening lead out almost in two in little more than three weeks, the Cubs got what was needed from four

Francisco Giants.

Taylor, on a 14-yard pass at 13:05, and Thorpe, on a 52-yard pass at 13:54, scored the final

Toronto touchdowns in a wild stretch which produced three touchdowns in 49 seconds.

In between at 13:10, Sorrell took the short-kickoff and raced

55 yards for what were to be the winning points.

Ticals then assumed a 28-15 lead at 9:13 of the fourth quarter when Eben fumbled

after catching the ball when Coffey missed a field goal from 38 yards. Coffey pounced on it for six points, then promptly converted.

four hits off Tom Griffin and Houston Astros, 0-2.

Seaver had a two-hit shutout going after five innings, then

Jim Wynn hit his 24th home run, Dennis Menke singled and Curt Blefary doubled.

IN THE BATTLE

Astros are still fifth in the five-team Western Division scramble, but they are only four and a half games behind the leading Atlanta Braves and two and a half games away from second place.

The runnerup berth is now

and Los Angeles Dodgers, beaten, 2-1, by Pittsburgh

Pirates.

Gerry Arrigo gave the Reds

TOOK A WHILE

The Pirates and Dodgers

didn't score a run until the 10th inning, then the Dodgers went ahead on a home run by Bill

Sudakis. But pinch-hitter Jose

Martinez singled in the tying run in the bottom of the inning with a single after Matty Alou

In the American League,

Minnesota Twins and Oakland leading off with a single. Los by defeating defending cham-

Thursday at Royal Athletic

to pitch a one-hitter for the

Mike McAvoy ended Hem-

ALEC MERRIMAN

One of the most productive fishing spots on Vancouver Island for the past seven or eight days has been in Saanich Inlet between the Mill Bay marker, the black sparbuoy at Coles Bay and Patricia Bay. Anglers have been picking up good numbers of small chinooks to seven and eight pounds, jacksmacks and the odd bigger salmon.

A boat check in those waters Wednesday recorded 27 chinooks, averaging seven and a half pounds, 15 jacks, nine coho, 50 chinook grilse, 23 coho grilse. And there were seven violations for under-size grilse.

The Arm is loaded with small grilse in the 10-inch size group, reports Stan Williams, who found they were snapping wildly at anything from abalone, McKnight and Krippled K spools to Tomnick and Lucky Louie plugs.

"I think they should bring in a four fish, any size limit," says Williams. "A big percentage of the released fish die and you can see the eagles hovering above waiting for them."

These young coho should be jealously protected by sports and commercial fishermen alike. It is encouraging to see such an abundance of them coming up, but if they are taken now they won't be available next year, when they will be eating and sporting size.

Fisheries officials recommend that sports anglers use bigger lures in the Inlet when it is so full of grilse. The bigger lures will take some grilse, but not as many as smaller spoons and gang trolls anglers use to go out after grilse, the odd few of which are now reaching the 12-inch keeper size.

Another bright spot on the fishing scene is Cowichan Bay, where fair numbers of big springs are now being taken by moochers, along with the odd limit of four to five-pound coho.

John Jeffries of Crofton boated a 35.14-pounder in Cowichan Bay Wednesday morning. It would have been a new Ladder Derby leader if he had bought a ticket. The big ones are mostly being taken by moochers with frozen and live herring.

Tyee salmon have arrived in Nootka Sound and are heading up Mochalet Inlet. Now is the time to try Head Bay, Tlupana Inlet and Bligh Island waters.

Big chinooks and tyee have been spotted rolling in the Trout Creek area, just north of Campbell River, which indicates action any day now in the Frenchman Pool and Tyee Pool at the mouth of the Campbell.

Comox Bay has been producing big chinooks for Buzz Bombers, but that appears to be the only big chinook or tyee fishing that will be available to Comox sports fishermen this year. The Comox Tyee Pool from Gartley Point to Goose Spit will be closed starting midnight Sunday to conserve the fall run of chinook salmon which has been dwindling for some years.

A few coho are being taken around Campbell River, but fishing is far from hot. Butcher Point and Cape Mudge to Shelter Bay has been fairly productive for coho on Flashes and Myl-R-Files and Oyster Bay waters have been "almost a hot spot" for coho according to fisheries reports. Coho fishing is also improved off Bates Beach and along to King Koho Resort and Little River.

Bowser, Deep Bay, Qualicum Bay, Qualicum, French Creek and Claytons have all been giving up some coho, with a little improvement reported. Coho fishing is also picking up off Nanaimo's Five Fingers and Snake Island and Ladysmith-Yellowpoint waters are producing small chinooks to seven pounds.

Active Pass has been fair at times, slow at others for chinooks to 20 pounds, numbers of jacks and some coho. We caught two jacks and a coho during a Tuesday trip.

Coho are hitting Strip Teaser and Flashes in Tumbo Island-East Point waters, reported one of the better spots.

Order Point-Secretary Island-Becher Bay-Pedder Bay waters are slow, but still producing the odd big spring. Mrs. Doreen Ruault, a visitor from Invermere, boated a 42½-pounder off Sooke.

Oak Bay is giving up some chinooks in The Gap and Trial Island waters.

From Alberni Inlet comes reports of plenty of hits but no tyees as anglers try to win the trophy for the first time of the season. Some are being taken in Barkley Sound-Barnfield waters.

The big chinooks have arrived at the Nitinat Bar. But access into Nitinat area will almost definitely be closed and if the fire hazard is as serious this weekend as it was on Thursday, there is a likelihood the road to Barnfield from Port Alberni will also be closed to recreation travel. There may be access from China Creek in cauldrons for people who must go through to Barnfield with a logging company fire vehicle leading the way on a no-stopping basis.

Nanaimo Lakes are closed for recreational travel. The fire hazard is serious and recreationists must take all precautions to ensure they are not blamed for any forest fires that may start.

Bolt

Bolt Rages Into Lead On Magnificent Shot

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, golfing terror of another era and now the United States seniors champion, cut out a brilliant 66, six under par, Thursday and stormed into the first-round lead in the Westchester Classic.

Bolt, now 51 but still far from mellow, winged into the top spot in this $250,000 event — the world's richest golf tournament — on a string of five consecutive birdies and a magnificent recovery shot on his final hole.

It was that magnificent recovery on the ninth — he played the back nine first — that pulled the jut-jawed old champion out of a tie with young Bert Greene and Australian Bruce Devlin, each in the clubhouse with a 67.

Bolt, winner of 15 tour events in his long career, needed a par to stay even, a birdie to take sole control as he walked up the fairway. He hit his second shot on the 500-yard par five far to the left in the deep rough. He couldn't even see the green and stamped and stormed around before pulling a wedge out of his bag.

His shot eventually came lofting out of the bushes within 2 feet of the pin and the now smiling Bolt rapped it in for the bird that put him on top.

Many challengers

At 68, four under par on the 6,677 yard, par 72 Westchester Country club course, was a large group, including Terry Dill, Fred Marti, Don Bies, Harold Manning, Bruce Crampton and Paul Harney.

In the group at 69 were Frank Beard, one of the hottest men on the tour, Tony Jacklin, the Englishman who won the British open, and hard hitting Tom Weiskopf.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino all had 71s, South African Gary Player a 70, U.S. Open champion Orville Moody a 72 and Masters titleholder George Archer a 73.

LONG WAIT

Bolt, as famous for his fiery temper and clubthrowing incidents as he was for his silk smooth swing in the 1950s, has not won on the tour since the 1961 Pensacola Open.

He has picked up $10,957 in 10 tour appearances this year and has been in the top 10 twice.

Vollmer Leads by Three Starts Defence with 66

CALGARY (CP) — Defending champion Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver fired a blistering five-under-par 66 Thursday to take a three-stroke lead in the first round of the $5,000 Alberta Open Golf Championship.

Vollmer, who won the title last year in a sudden-death playoff with Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont., and Calgary amateur Bob Wylie, carded a 33 on each nine over the 6,550-yard, par 71 course.

IT WAS OBVIOUS

"I played better today than I have for the past couple of months," said the 24-year-old Vollmer, who had six birdies in the opening round of the 54-hole tournament.

Vollmer, who ranks fifth in the Canadian golf tour points series, led Gary Slater of Freeport, Bahamas, and amateur Jack Wilkes of Calgary, who shot 69s.

Wilkes carded a 33 on the front nine before slipping to a 36 coming home. Slater took a 37 on the first nine and a sizzling four-under-par 32 on the back.

FOUR BEAT PAR

Only four golfers were able to break par in the first round as a record field toured the course in warm, sunny weather.

Harold Pasechnik of Calgary, a member of the Alberta junior interprovincial team, scored a one-under par 34-36-70, one stroke ahead of two professionals and two amateurs.

At 71 were Saskatchewan Open champion Bob Cox of Vancouver, Ken Fulton of Montreal and amateurs Don Graham of Medicine Hat and Doug Silverberg of Calgary.

In a six-way tie for ninth place at 72 were Wilf Homenuik

Only 12 professionals will make the championship, plus any amateur who qualifies by winning a provincial open.

Norman is the leader with 46.5 points and Gary Bowerman of Toronto, with a 75 Thursday, holds second place with 45 points.

Vaughan Trapp led the four-man Victoria contingent with a 36-38-74.

Bill Wakeham was next with a 76 while Dick Silverberg, Glen Meadows professional, shot a 79 after slipping to 43 on the back nine.

Amateur Gene Williams had an 80.

Crowd Helps Plans

Hopes of establishing quarter-horse racing as a regular event in Victoria got a boost at Sandown Park Thursday night when more than 2,000 fans turned out to watch a five-race exhibition program.

Feature was the Canadian record time turned in by Wiggle Easy, owned by R. Oliver of Spokane, in a match race against Bar Whit, owned by Danny Hajnal of Victoria.

IN 17 SECONDS

Wiggle Easy was timed in 17 seconds for the 330 yards, finishing a half second in front.

A Hajnal-owned horse, however, won two of the other four races. Penny Ridge, ridden by Keith Smith of Calgary, won the first race in 19.3 seconds, then whipped a sports car by a head in a match race over 220 yards.

Vancouver-owned horses won the other two races. My Dear, ridden by Smith, won the second race in 17.2 seconds and Y Bar Me, ridden by Ron Ronson, won the fourth race.

Cutler Loses

EDMONTON (CP) — Dave Cutler, former Simon Fraser University player from Victoria, was released Thursday by Edmonton Eskimos.

A place-kicker, Cutler was replaced on the roster by Bill Gaxds, who was claimed for the waiver price from Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Bernice Gets Baseball Rejection

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bernice Gera, who had all her bags packed and ready for an historic assignment that would have made her the first female umpire in professional baseball history, unpacked them Thursday because of a last-minute disapproval of her contract.

Mrs. Gera, a 38-year-old housewife, didn't cry when she received a wire from Phil Piton, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, notifying her he had declared her contract invalid but she swallowed hard a couple of times and said: "I was all packed and ready to leave. Now I have to unpack. It's a big disappointment for me personally and a big disappointment for all women. But I'm not quitting. I intend to put this whole thing into the hands of my attorney."

She originally had been scheduled to work Friday's New York-Penn League game between Auburn and Corning at Auburn, N.Y. She was to have officiated on the bases along with two male umpires.

Mrs. Gera had fought for more than two years to break baseball's sex line for umpires, carrying her battle to the New York State Human Rights Commission and enlisting the aid of Rep. Mario Baiggi, before finally receiving an official contract last Friday from Vincent McNamara, president of the New York-Penn League.

"I'm not the final word," McNamara said from the league office in Buffalo. "Mr. Piton only exercised the duties of his office and acted within his right. It's his job to uphold professional baseball and the national agreement."

Defector Declines Meeting

Russian Avoiding Russians

LONDON (UPI) — Anatoly Kuznetsov, the Russian author who has defected to Britain, Thursday refused to talk with anyone from the Soviet embassy despite British officials' enthusiasm for the idea.

Kuznetsov, who escaped his Kremlin-appointed "interpreter" Monday night in London's Soho district by saying he wanted to look for a prostitute, was still in hiding Thursday night.

British foreign ministry sources said Kuznetsov had still not made up his mind whether to agree to a Soviet embassy request for a meeting. However, the request was made by a telephone call from the Soviet embassy Wednesday night and 24 hours later Kuznetsov would still not agree to see any Soviet officials.

The sources said that the foreign ministry had left it up to Kuznetsov whether he wanted to see the Soviet officials.

But they indicated the British security officers favored such a meeting, in order to forestall any possible Soviet propaganda that Kuznetsov had been captured against his will and was being held prisoner in Britain.

Soviet spokesmen complained that they have not been given proper information about Kuznetsov.

A spokesman at the Soviet embassy said Thursday evening, "We still do not know what has happened to Mr. Kuznetsov. We are trying to find out what has happened to him from the foreign office and have asked to see him."

The Soviets said the British government failed to give them any information on Kuznetsov for two days after his disappearance Monday night and that the foreign ministry would not tell them where he was staying.

Official spokesmen at the foreign ministry would not comment but ministry sources said the British attitude was that Kuznetsov "is perfectly free to come and go and that one does not reveal private addresses."

The sources said foreign ministry officials got in touch with Scotland Yard and the Home Office as soon as they heard Kuznetsov was missing and informed the Soviet embassy as soon as he was found again.

Kuznetsov, 40, arrived in London a week ago to do research on some articles about the life of Soviet founding father V.I. Lenin. On Monday night, he and his "interpreter," George Andjaparidze, went to a Soho strip club.

He there gave Andjaparidze the slip by saying he wanted to find a prostitute. In fact, he returned to the Apollo Hotel, where the two were staying, packed his bags and left.

On Wednesday, he approached the Home Office and asked for permission to stay in Britain. This was granted although a Home Office spokesman said it was not granting Kuznetsov "political asylum."

Sasquatch Story Changed

MONTESANO, Wash. — A part-time sheriff's deputy who reported seeing a strange creature fitting the description of the legendary Sasquatch now says it was a she-bear, Sheriff A. M. Gallagher said.

Meanwhile, the report led to searches, further reports and other activity in hopes of finding the fabled ape-man of Indian legend.

The deputy was unavailable for comment. He declined use of his name earlier this week when he told of seeing what he described as an eight-foot creature with hairless feet, hands and face, and with protruding breasts.

NEW YORK — Charles Edison, a former governor of New Jersey and son of inventor Charles Edison, died of heart failure at 78.

LOS ANGELES — Sherwood Egbert, president of Studebaker Corp. from 1961 to 1963, died at 49. He left Studebaker in 1963 and later formed a management consultant firm which he operated at the time of his death.

NAIROBI — Joseph Odera-Jowi is Kenya's new minister of economic planning and development. He replaces the late Tom Mboya, assassinated in a Nairobi shopping street July 5.

OTTAWA — Boris Dolzenko, a Russian physicist whose permission to stay in Canada runs out Sept. 16, may be granted landed immigrant status.

PHNOM PENH — Prince Norodom Sihanouk told the Cambodian National Assembly he intends to hand over the duties of head of state to a regency council.

NAIROBI, Kenya — The daughter of President Jomo Kenyatta has been elected unopposed as deputy mayor of Nairobi — the first African woman to hold the office.

LONDON — Zahir Fou, daughter of classical violinist Yehudi Menuhin, is suing her husband, Chinese classical pianist Fou Ts'ong, for a divorce. She lists a woman called Jacob as a co-respondent in the uncontested divorce proceeding. The couple married in December, 1960.

North Vancouver Bank Loses $16,685 to Trio

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Three men armed with guns and masked with stockings Thursday escaped after robbing a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada of $16,685.

The men ordered manager Dan Hurrell, bank staff and 10 customers to lie down on the floor after a young man carrying a pistol entered Mr. Hurrell's office.

Police said the three appeared to be armed with revolvers, two of which might have been by the tallest of the three was plastic toys. But they said they were sure the revolver carried by the tallest of the three was genuine.

Uneasy Calm in Resort Town Residents, Invaders Rest

PERCE, Que. (CP) — A lull in the violence and the police to drive them out of town. At one time, local residents did manage to chase the group from the barn with fire hoses, only to have the youths return the next night. The group's stand has been supported by provincial Justice Minister René Paul, who told local authorities there are no grounds for using force to chase the young people out of town. Paul's statement was part of his rejection Wednesday of a request by the Perce town council for provincial police help in removing the group. People who ride motorcycles and grow beards have the same rights as other people, Paul said. It is not the duty of the justice department or the provincial police to regulate every detail of dress and behavior. He suggested that intelligent, sincere discussion would settle the problem at Perce.

Farmers Set To Do Battle

WINNIPEG (CP) — East-West accommodation was all the spirit Thursday as the National Farmers Union set off to do battle with "the corporate industrial complex."

The organization, born of a down-the-line merger of the provincial farm unions of the Maritimes, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, will be headed by Roy Atkinson of Saskatchewan and his chief lieutenant will be Walter Miller of Ontario.

Miller, president of the Ontario Farmers Union, was nominated along with Atkinson, who headed the loose coalition of provincial farm union entities that was the old NFU.

But he declined to run with the statement that, above all, he wants to see the farmers of Canada united.

"I do not intend to take any action in this convention that would send you out of here divided," Miller told delegates to this founding meeting.

MILLER ACCLAIMED

"I believe in my heart that he (Atkinson) is the man who should head up this organization."

Later, there was Western reciprocity. Three Westerners were nominated for the vice-presidency but they declined to stand and Miller assumed the No. 2 post to cheering acclamation.

Outside of the new national organization are Quebec, Newfoundland and Alberta. Quebec's Union des Cultivateurs Catholiques has shown no inclination to join and the Alberta Farmers Union is withholding its decision until December. There is no farm union as such in Newfoundland.

SWORN ENEMY

In his rip-roaring presidential address near the close of the two-day convention, the 45-year-old Atkinson said the NFU's sworn enemy is the "industrial economy which is grinding people into poverty."

Sixty per cent of Canada's farm people live in poverty, he said.

"Put them into one city and it would be the biggest slum in this nation... the family farm shouldn't be in existence in poverty, and it does not have to be that way."

Steel Men Strike

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — More than 11,500 members of the United Steelworkers of America early today began a work stoppage at the giant Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., cutting off about 40 per cent of Canada's basic steel production.

The men went off the job when the midnight deadline marking the end of a three-year contract passed with no word that union and company negotiators had reached a new settlement. Both sides had been meeting in Toronto for three weeks.

The company had made its own preparations earlier in the week for a possible work stoppage by cooling down blast furnaces and suspending actual production.

Prisoner Hijacks Jetliner

MIAMI (AP) — A hulking prisoner escaped from two guards, placed a razor blade to a stewardess' neck and hijacked a jetliner with 131 persons aboard to Cuba Thursday, officials reported.

The prisoner was identified only as L. Perry, travelling in a first-class compartment in the custody of two federal government agents, William Lavin and Joseph Hart.

"He must be the man," said Nancy McEmore, a public relations officer for Trans World Airlines. "He was the only one who didn't get off."

One passenger said neither of the federal agents was armed because airline rules barred them from carrying weapons aboard the plane.

WEST OF TULSA

The TWA jet, bound for Los Angeles with 123 passengers, was hijacked as it passed west of Tulsa, Okla., Thursday afternoon.

The hijacker, tall, heavy-set and wearing a sports jacket and tie, remained in the cabin until the Boeing 727 landed at Havana's Jose Marti airport. The craft returned safely to Miami Thursday night.

It was the 37th plane forced to fly to Cuba this year. Seven other attempts were foiled.

Land Snakes—a Winner!

Grimacing face belongs to 9-year-old Manuel Plaszewski of Miami, and decoration on his finger is ring-necked darter snake—Manuel's entry in Hialeah-Miami Springs YMCA pet show. Ribbons were awarded in such categories as biggest dog, littles dog, biggest snake, littles snake. Manuel was easy winner in last group.—(AP)

Noon Break Regained By Letter Carriers

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans' plans to cut post office operating costs suffered a setback estimated at $1,500,000 a year Thursday with announcement of a return-to-old work procedures.

A joint statement by the department, 25,000-member Council of Postal Unions and treasury board—which bargains for the government—announces the end of a new system of mail.

This was the procedure day home delivery week in urban centres. The council, and particularly letter carriers, fought the changes bitterly.

Kierans estimated new methods of delivery would save some $3,000,000 a year.

It was implemented Feb. 17 along with the start of the five-

Crux Extradition Pushed

Appeal Sent to Top Court

NASSAU (CP) — Canada and British Columbia received permission Thursday to apply to the Bahamas Supreme Court for an order that Magistrate John Bailey permit all parties in the Duncan Crux extradition hearing to submit on-the-spot evidence. This will be over and above the evidence from depositions received here after a Vancouver hearing into fraud and theft charges against Crux.

CANCELLATION SOUGHT

Mr. Justice Cunningham Smith granted permission to Patrick Toote, Nassau lawyer representing Canada, for issuance of a writ of mandamus against the magistrate. In the writ the Canadian authorities also will seek cancellation of the magistrate's Wednesday decision that Crux, former head of the Commonwealth Group of companies, cannot be extradited on any of 10 charges of publishing false prospectuses.

On Wednesday the decision was reached by Bailey solely on evidence and exhibits from one of five sets of depositions from Vancouver. Toote has argued that a ruling by Bailey Monday against presentation of fresh testimony prevented him from proving publication of the 10 prospectuses.

Failure to prove publication was the grounds for Bailey's decision that there could be no extradition on the 10 charges.

AVOIDS COMMENT

Bailey said Thursday afternoon he would not comment immediately on Canada's challenge to his ruling against allowing fresh evidence. He then ordered that the hearing go on at 10 a.m. today into 11 other counts against Crux that form the basis of Canada's application.

The writ of mandamus is expected to be ready this week. After it is issued, the magistrate, the Bahamas attorney general and Crux have eight days to prepare to meet the application.

"There is so much trouble in this case," said Bailey as he surveyed a photostatic copy of Canada's Supreme Court application.

FAIR FROM OVER

The magistrate gave notice early in the proceedings that he intended to render a judgment.

Grandma Gives Good Advice on Diarrhea

"Don't ever believe there's nothing you can do when someone in the family has an annoying attack of Diarrhea," says Grandma. Many a Grandma with years of experience gives the same good advice — why put up with Diarrhea when Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry brings such quick relief.

Formulated from gentle-acting roots and herbs, Dr. Fowler's Extract clears up distressing symptoms of cramps, nausea and intestinal upsets — quickly, gently, effectively. Ask for Dr. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

ADVT.

before going on vacation Aug. 14, but the hearing still is far from completed.

Crux, 63, virtually silent during all the legal manoeuvring, announced he would apply soon for reduction of the $75,000 property bail on which he has been free since his arrest here June 3. He said the property of those who put up the bail has been tied up much longer than originally anticipated.

Toote said he did not think a bail reduction application would present any problems.

Isolation Methods Tested

By BILL STAVDAL

Teaching methods of psychiatrist Dr. Phillip Ney—including a version of his controversial isolation system—have been used with disturbed children in three Greater Victoria schools for the past year.

Dr. Ney was praised Thursday by the principal of Victor School and by Dr. Giuseppe Multari, former school psychologist for Greater Victoria.

Dr. Ney stirred controversy this week in a proposal for a research study with emotionally disturbed children at McTavish elementary school in Saanich school district. The study, which was approved by the school board, involves a "time-out booth" for isolating children who disrupt the class.

SIZE STUDY

Dimensions of the booth remain unclear, though district superintendent Robert Price mentioned two feet by six.

Greater Victoria school board recently rejected Dr. Ney's research project in a closed meeting. The time-out booth was mentioned this week as the main reason for the decision.

Dr. Multari, who leaves this month for a new post in his native Italy, said Thursday:

'UNWARRANTED'

"I think Dr. Ney was misunderstood. Having read his original proposal, I think the alarm is unwarranted."

"The idea of a cubicle is an excellent one, and has been used in many places in the U.S."

Dr. Multari said the isolation area could be as simple as a three-sided study carrel in which an upset child could cool off.

NOT PUNISHMENT

Screened-off areas of the type advocated by Dr. Ney were used last winter in classes for emotionally disturbed children at South Park and Oaklands schools, said Dr. Multari.

"The idea of a cubicle should be entirely divorced from punishment," he said.

Edward Sullivan, principal of Victor school for retarded children, said Thursday that he supported the work of Dr. Ney at the school during the past winter.

BREAKTHROUGH

There was no isolation area, although it had been proposed and he had endorsed it, said Mr. Sullivan.

"At first, my staff and I were dubious about Dr. Ney's program, but when we became aware of the positive change which took place in some of our more aggressive, hyperactive or disturbed children, then we realized that there was something in the nature of a breakthrough in the treatment of disturbed children," said Mr. Sullivan.

The principal also works at George Peakes Clinic and the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

TO SETTLE DOWN

Mr. Sullivan said he doesn't know what will become of the time-out booth proposal at Victor school now that the Greater Victoria school board has rejected the idea.

Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Saanich school board, said Thursday that the board planned to go ahead with Dr. Ney's program, and added that the time-out booth was not intended as a punishment cell. "It's a place for an upset child to settle down when he can't cope with the group, or they can't cope with him," said Mrs. Parrott, a former teacher.

'No Impairment' In Wire Service

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson said Thursday night he was satisfied telegraph service would be satisfactory when the Victoria office of CP-CN Telecommunications reduced its hours today.

Mr. Anderson said he received a copy of a telegram from CPR president Ian Sinclair to Prime Minister Trudeau, saying, "The arrangements made will not impair in any way the public message telegraph service available in Victoria."

The telegram from Mr. Sinclair said a traffic survey completed recently showed there was "virtually no public message traffic" between 8 p.m. and 7 a.m. on weekdays, or between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. on Saturdays or all day Sundays.

All delivery and sending of telegraphs as of today during those hours will be handled by the Vancouver office, the telegram said. This means by telephone, with no toll charge to the sender.

By Saanich Liberals

NDP Earmarked As Principal Foe

The Liberal party in Saanich Thursday night acclaimed its candidate and chose the NDP as the main election opponent in a riding long held by Social Credit.

North Saanich lawyer Louis Lindholm was the unopposed nominee before about 100 people in the Royal Oak junior high school auditorium. Accepting the nomination, he told his audience that an NDP government would be "an unmitigated disaster" for B.C.

It was apparent before nominations opened that Mr. Lindholm would take the nomination without a contest, to the annoyance of at least one outspoken Liberal in the audience.

ABSENCE HIT

Roy Henley interrupted from the floor to protest the absence of a second nomination, and put forward Claremont school principal Joseph Lott's name.

Mr. Lott, who had been named earlier as a possible candidate, quickly declined the nomination. Mr. Henley continued aloud to disagree.

He was told by the chairman: "Mr. Henley, if you'd like to come around afterward, I would like to tell you a little story."

'LAST NIGHT'

Mr. Henley said later that he would support Mr. Lindholm, but he would have liked to see an "open" nomination with more than one candidate. "I knew last night about this," he said.

Mr. Lott declined to say when he decided not to run for the nomination, citing "job responsibilities" as part of his reason.

The three main speakers singled out the NDP as the opponent in the campaign to be fought on lower Vancouver Island by the "Liberal team."

Federal MP David Anderson said the Social Credit party had been in power too long, but "the main opponents are going to be the NDP."

Oak Bay candidate Allan Cox, MLA in the last Legislature, told the meeting "the fear of the NDP is catching fire."

The Liberals wind up their nominations in Greater Victoria with the Victoria (two candidates) nomination convention at 8 p.m. today at The Inn, 1528 Cook.

Victims' Rites Monday

Funeral services are scheduled Monday for the victims of an accident and a fire.

Services for John Glennox of 2970 Albina, who died of burns suffered in a house fire, will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. Monday by Rev. Gilbert Smith in Sands Mortuary. Cremation will follow.

Services will be held at 3 p.m. Monday in St. Andrew's Cathedral for Daniel Ford, seven-year-old victim of a car-bicycle accident. Burial will be at Royal Oak.

Life Restored to Smoke Victim

Dog getting mouth-to-mouth respiration is tiny Chico, overcome by smoke Thursday during fire in Drake Hotel. At left, Chico's owner, Mrs. Betty Townsend, holds him while Mrs. Pat Bell applies mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Then Mrs. Bell listens for Chico's own breath. Finally, revived Chico snuggles gratefully against his owner. Fire Capt. Robert Smirl said no one but Chico was hurt, although there was $20,000 worth of fire and water damage to Johnson Street hotel. Everyone was alerted and taken to safety. Capt. Smirl said one couple "couldn't see the stairs for the smoke." He said he believed careless smoker touched off fire.

Exactly 32 Years Later

CFB Deputy Closing Navy Career

Capt. Frederick Frewer, deputy base commander of CFB Esquimalt, will retire Aug. 18, 32 years to the day after his enlistment as a cadet in Toronto.

Capt. Frewer told the Colonist Tuesday night that he had no plans for, after retirement, other than to stay in Victoria, "which the family has grown to love."

He said he and Mrs. Frewer would go to London this fall to visit their son, Christopher, 21, who is studying art there.

Another son, Barry, 23, is with the naval reserve here. Sandra, 17, plans to attend the University of Victoria this fall. Matthew, 11, and Timothy, 6, are students at Glenlyon Preparatory School for Boys.

The family will move in mid-August from Belmont Park to their own home at 930 Foul Bay Road.

Capt. Frewer came here five years ago as chief of staff to Rear Admiral W. M. Landymore, then flag officer Pacific Coast.

A native of Toronto, the captain took his initial training with the Royal Navy. He returned to Canada in 1940 to join the destroyer HMCS St.

Death Accidental

More Care Urged With Heavy Lifts

A coroner's jury Thursday brought in a rider that more caution be used in making heavy lifts after ruling that the death of shipyard plater William Liggett was accidental.

Death resulted from a fractured skull when Mr. Liggett was struck by a 20-ton block after lifting rigging snapped as a 63-ton crane cab was hoisted into position. The accident took place July 22 on a self-loading logging barge at Esquimalt Graving Dock.

The jury recommended that "greater precaution should be taken in the methods employed during the lifting of heavy loads upon floating structures which are subject to movement or list."

In testimony metallurgical engineer Ralph Baver said he had inspected the weld which had been holding the lug at the top of the lifting gear and found it to be a good quality commercial weld.

He was made commanding officer of HMCS Cornwallis in July, 1959, and in August, 1961, was made skipper of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

He attended the staff course at RMC before being transferred to Esquimalt.

He was transferred to Royal Roads as executive officer in 1947 and in November, 1949, took command of HMCS Micmac.

In March, 1952, he went to the U.K. on an RN staff course and returned to Canada as director of weapons and tactics at naval headquarters, later changing to director of tactics and staff duties.

Further appointments included that of executive officer at HMCS Stadacona, RCN baracks at Halifax, and executive officer of the aircraft carrier Magnificent.

In April, 1957, he was posted to Washington, D.C., as joint secretary and executive assistant to the chairman of the Canadian joint staff at HMCS Niagara, the RCN establishment in the U.S. capital.

He was made commanding officer of HMCS Cornwallis in July, 1959, and in August, 1961, was made skipper of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

He attended the staff course at RMC before being transferred to Esquimalt.

Otters Try Out B.C. Waters

The sea otters are back.

At about 5 p.m. Thursday, 19 female otters and 10 males were released near Bunsby Island, 220 miles northwest of Victoria. Dr. James Hatter, director of the B.C. fish and wildlife branch, said, "It all went off like clockwork. They got in the water and were cleaning themselves and swimming around like they belonged there."

Dr. Hatter said one otter was obviously in poor health and was not released, but the others were in fine shape.

Don Blood, regional wildlife biologist for Vancouver Island, said the animals were "young adults that should have a good chance of survival." He also said they "really took to the water."

The area where the animals were released is dotted with reefs and shoals. It contains plenty of shellfish and molluscs, which the otters feed on, Mr. Blood said. The otters are from herds in the Aleutian Islands. Nineteenth-century fur traders hunted them into extinction in B.C.

Although the animals are in good health a couple of men will watch them for a few days to see how they disperse up the island, Mr. Blood said. Their survival in B.C. waters will depend upon whether or not they are left alone. The B.C. government, with co-operation from B.C. Indians, intends to keep them under strict surveillance.

Thirty more otters were released in the Pacific 25 miles north of Aberdeen, Wash. Five were taken by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to be donated to Tacoma's Point Defiance Zoo.

Drop in Wheat Won't Lower Bread Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — There is little prospect of bread and other bakery product prices being reduced because of the decline in world wheat prices, government reports indicate.

Flour represents only a fraction of the total cost of raw materials, labor, transportation, overhead and other costs involved in a loaf of bread. And wheat price cuts have only a fractional effect on bread flour prices.

According to the latest available statistics, about 90,000,000 bushels of wheat were milled for flour out of a total supply of some 1,300,000,000 bushels available in Canada for domestic use and export in the 1968-69 crop year.

About 2.3 bushels of wheat are required to produce a hundredweight of flour, and of the 37,750,000 hundredweight milled in 1967-68, more than 10,000,000 was exported.

Wheat prices quoted in Winnipeg Thursday for top-grade No. 1 Northern wheat for domestic sales were down about two cents a bushel from mid-July, and three cents from the start of the month.

Prices of other grades of wheat which are more competitive with wheat from other countries in the export market have been cut further.

But a two-cent-a-bushel reduction in wheat for domestic flour consumption means about a third of a cent on the cost of wheat in a seven-pound bag of bread flour such as a housewife would buy.

The average price of all-purpose white flour, made from a blend of wheats, is about 12 cents a pound.

Golden Date Prompts City Return

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Gurney, former residents of Victoria, are returning here Saturday to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with their family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gurney, who have been living in Yucca, Calif., since leaving Canada in 1946, will be honored at a family dinner at 7 p.m. Saturday at the home of their son Morris, 3039 Balfour. An open house will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baird of 987 Easter Road.

The couple also has another son, Fred of San Jose, Calif., who will attend the golden-anniversary celebration, and another daughter, Mrs. Mable Lyle of Victoria, 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my husband bought a telescope to study the stars—he said. After the fourth night he lost interest in the sky and is now studying other "heavenly bodies."

We live in an apartment which is ideally situated for his new hobby. He hurries through dinner, races to the window and stays there four or five hours at a time.

Last week he invited three of the boys from the office to enjoy the fun. He was quite disappointed because his two best subjects for observation the cello, Venus and Mars were not at home. He promised the boys he'd invite them back.

I am disgusted with him and he knows it. I am also concerned that he might be breaking the law. I've heard of men being arrested as peeping toms. Please inform me. Just Looking, Thanks.

Dear Just: So long as Tom stays in his own apartment he cannot be arrested. In the meantime, he patient, dearie. Then will tire of his hobby after a while. Growing up takes time.

Caller in the Night

Dear Ann: A distant relative of mine who is going through the menopause is acting very oddly. Six weeks ago she telephoned at 2:00 a.m. and asked, "Are you all right?" I said, "Yes, of course." She then related a terrible dream she had in which I was murdered. That was the end of my night's sleep.

A week later she telephoned at 6:00 a.m. and asked if I had called her. I said, "No." She then explained that her phone had rung and she heard a scream that sounded like my voice.

This past week she has telephoned five times, accused me of calling her and not speaking, just breathing into the phone. I'm sure that woman needs a psychiatrist. In the meantime I'm going to need one, too, if she doesn't quit bothering me. Any suggestions? Postered By A Nut.

Dear Post: Suggest that she see a doctor and get help. Then help yourself by getting an unlisted telephone number. It costs nothing.

Dad Can Do It

Dear Ann: Our 11-year-old son's best friend, Joey, wants to admire his father and tries hard to justify his drinking. Last night he asked if I was against beer. "Even if a person can drink 12 bottles in a row and still walk a straight line," He added with fake bravado, "My dad can do it!"

I gave a non-committal answer and then hated myself for not having the courage to tell the boy what heavy, continuous drinking can do to a person. How can I get the message across without running down his father, and incidentally, his mother, too?

Austin: It is not your responsibility to "get the message across." A child's basic concepts are learned at home, not from the neighbors. When the boy asks leading questions tell him to talk to his parents. In the meantime, some individuals who grew up around alcoholism hate liquor and never touch it. Others turn out to be second and third generation lushes, which gives the impression that alcoholism is hereditary. It is not, of course. It is a learned response to frustration, loneliness and insecurity.

Girl, 10, Gives Birth

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — A 10-year-old girl gave birth to a five-pound, 10-ounce boy in a suburban Washington hospital.

Alexandria hospital administrator Charles Goff said, "It was a normal delivery. The baby's condition is good." Goff declined to give the girl's name.

Court Rules Trip Abduction

LONDON (CP) — A high court justice said Thursday that Christopher Gray has in effect abducted his seven-year-old son, Stuart, by taking him to Canada in defiance of a British court order.

"I shall make an immediate mandatory order that the child shall be returned," Sir James Stirling added in granting the petition of Gray's former wife, Heather Ann de Veil.

Under a divorce granted in 1967, Gray who lived in Basildon, Essex, was allowed to have the boy in his home one weekend each month. Justice Stirling said Gray failed to return the boy to his mother July 6.

"A clear case of abduction," Stirling said in court as he heard evidence that Gray, accompanied by his new wife, a daughter of the second marriage and the boy, emigrated to Canada, to make his home in Petawawa, Ont.

When the boy was not returned, police visited Gray's home in Basildon and found it empty. Mrs. de Veil's lawyer said, Canada House later confirmed that the Grays had emigrated.

that Canadian immigration authorities may have been told "a series of lies" concerning the boy.

"The fact remains that this child has been kidnapped and taken out of the country in that defiance of a custody order of the court," he said.

Democracy Spurned

Feudal Life Back —Sark Rejoices

LONDON (Reuters) — The 556 inhabitants of the English Channel Island of Sark are happily back to their feudal ways after an unwelcome bid by the local squire to give them democracy had failed.

Dame Sybil Hathaway, hereditary ruler of the island about 30 miles from the French coast, tried to bring the islanders' lives into the 20th century after complaints about the regulations she imposed on them.

She said she would pass control of the island—one of four in the Channel Island group—40 neighboring Guernsey.

But the islanders immediately opposed the move, which, they said, might bring up-to-date government, but also would bring income tax, cars and technology to the leisure island.

Now the opposition seems to have won as Sir William Arnold, bailiff of Guernsey, Wednesday bluntly said his island was not interested in taking over the administration of Sark.

Arnold told Guernsey's Parliament, "It seems as if La Dame is trying to make a glorious exit. The people of Sark must make up their minds."

"They can either do nothing at all and carry on as they are or decide to do as La Dame wishes. Knowing Sark people as I do, I think they will continue going their own way."

Dame Sybil complains she can no longer offer the island as a haven of peace because there are 42 tractors, few of which obey the traffic laws. Cars are banned.

She also is perturbed at having to call in the police every few weeks to handle complaints about the "utter disregard" of liquor laws.

After her announcement, the islanders accused her of betraying them and jeopardizing their future at the hands of Guernsey "bureaucrats."

Dame Sybil refused to comment on Arnold's announcement, but a member of Sark's Parliament, Pat Falle, said the islanders were jubilant.

"We are most heartened by Sir William's statement," Mrs. Falle said. "He has backed the people of Sark right up to the hilt. We could not have asked for more."

Dame Sybil is responsible only to Queen Elizabeth. The Channel Islands have a special relationship with Britain which is responsible for their external affairs.

False Ads Classified

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer and corporate affairs department Thursday disclosed some of the initial criteria it will apply in cracking down on misleading advertising.

The announcement follows proclamation of Criminal Code amendments which make the department responsible for enforcement of misleading-advertising provisions under the Combines Investigation Act. The provisions were transferred from the Code.

The provisions, not themselves new, set out penalties of up to five years imprisonment upon conviction for publishing or causing to be published "a statement that purports to be a statement but that is untrue, deceptive or misleading or is intentionally so worded or arranged that it is deceptive or misleading."

The criteria developed as examples of advertising "likely to be studied with enforcement in mind":

- A misleading statement of fact in an advertisement — Example: "Below our cost" when the selling price is in fact higher than the delivered price of the article to the retailer.
- A statement of performance which is not supported by an adequate test — Rope advertised as "2,000 pounds test" where no adequate and proper test of the rope has been made.
- Deceptive use of contests — "You are the lucky winner of our grand award" when in fact the "award" was not exceptional in that many people received the identical mailing piece.
- "Free" offers that are not in fact free — Receipt of the "free" gift is contingent in the purchase of another article or articles which could be purchased through conventional channels at lower prices.
- "Bait-and-switch" operations where the item used as bait was not in fact held for sale by the advertiser. This is the practice of advertising an article at an exceptionally low price with the intention of selling that article but of switching customers to other goods.
- Contest purporting to award prizes where such prizes are not in fact available — An advertiser announces planned distribution of $25,000 in prizes but in fact does not provide for the distribution of prizes.
- The "suited flat" — An advertiser using the newspaper classified section purports to be selling his household furniture, whereas in fact he is selling goods supplied from other sources.
- "Clip-and-paste" solicitations — This is a direct mail device in which typically the customer is invited to verify a listing in a directory but which when signed and returned amounts to an order for which he may be invoiced.

Unfettered Mark Anti-Bra Day

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Today is "anti-bra day."

Headquarters for the worldwide call for the natural look is San Francisco, famous for its free-thinking coeds and its topless dancers — all unremitting foes of brassieres.

The topless dancers plan to picket the city's major department stores and a drive is on for women all over the world to send their bras here for destruction.

Some 200 bras already have arrived, ranging from size 32B to 52DD.

Bohan's Maxi Bomb Proves Dud of Show

PARIS (AP) — Marc Bohan of Christian Dior dropped a bomb at his fall and winter fashion collection Thursday — a hemline that went all the way down to lower calf.

The audience of celebrities and fashion reporters greeted it with stony silence.

The bomb was actually an assortment of coats, dresses and suits, all with equally long hemlines. Carrying out the overall theme of lean, lanky and flatbested, they were elegant and beautiful. But the audiences remained silent.

Five minutes later his tall models came back wearing miniskirts, and the dead silence broke out into wild applause and laughter.

This experience indicates Bohan could find the public less enthusiastic about the new hemline than anticipated. It may take longer to drop hemlines than to raise them.

The maxiskirts were more than a trial balloon. Bohan insists on the length in every style group.

Evening pants tunics are dropped to calf length. Even the bride is given the same treatment. Her satin tunic and pants are partly covered by an elaborate mantle.

Family Reunited At Last

As for the rest, it drew applause for minis, top boots, youth, chic, beauty and fabulous fabrics.

Bohan tailoring is clean-cut, with tubs, longer double-breasted closing, belts, and pockets all adding to the stringbean silhouette.

Some maxiskirts, coats and jackets close invisibly, but because they are so long and narrow, about 10 inches is left unzipped in front.

Bohan likes muted brown or grey shadow plaids and reversible wools. Overblouses are often loosely belted in patent, buckled in silver, placed at the hipbone. Rosewood goes into silk blouses and afternoon dresses.

He likes fine drawing peasant necklines, wrapped stoles, ascots, furlined chasubles, belted evening shirtwaist dresses with long sleeves tied at the nape of the neck.

Campus Offers Friendly Sex Bureau

TORONTO (CP) — Diamonds are Forever — So Are Babies, reads the sign advertising a unique birth control clinic to be opened on the University of Toronto campus next Tuesday.

"It's not really a clinic at all," explains Dawn Aspinall, a 24-year-old graduate student. "In fact, we are calling it a drop-in centre to make it seem more informal."

Mrs. Aspinall and a staff of 10 volunteers plan to operate the centre as a place where young men and women can come for a cup of coffee and a chat.

"We are not planning to usurp the medical functions of the university health service or of any doctor," says Mrs. Aspinall.

Tennis Costumes Easier, Briefer

TORONTO (CP) — Women's tennis outfits, like their dresses and bathing suits, seem to be consuming less and less material each year.

The gradual trend to shorter attire will be illustrated here Sunday in a fashion show during the Canadian open tennis championships.

The show, to be presented by ranking Ontario tennis player Penny Sparling, will feature copies of old-fashioned outfits and some daring costumes of the future.

Miss Sparling says women players on the court now almost all wear frilly panties.

"In the past five years, skirts have shrunk from 16 to 13 inches and the underpants a ways show," said Miss Sparling, who designs tennis clothes when she isn't playing the sport.

The oldest exhibit to be shown will be the outfit worn by Maude Watson of Britain in 1884 when she competed at Wimbledon.

It includes an ankle-length bustled dress, a boater hat and boots with two-inch heels. A bundle of hairpins are required to keep the hat on, and Miss Sparling has found she has to keep one hand on her racket and the other on her hat when playing in the outfit which she will model Sunday.

Another old-fashioned outfit will be the one adopted by Mrs. Lambert Chambers, turn-of-the-century Wimbledon singles champion.

It features pearls, a snug blouse, and an ankle-length skirt. The tight blouse makes it difficult to swing a racket while the skirt hampers movement.

Also to be modelled will be the outfit worn by Suzanne Lenglen of France, star of the 1920s who shocked crowds with mascara-blackened eyes, brilliant red lips, a blue necklace, headband and an ostrich cape which was discarded prior to each match.

Miss Lenglen, who seemed almost naughty in those days, also wore knee-high stockings and occasionally the shocked audience got a glimpse of her bare legs.

Another outfit is a copy of the one worn by Alice Marble of the United States in the 1930s. Miss Marble wore the first shorts seen in major competition, a man's shirt, peaked cap and red blazer.

Tennis outfits became increasingly daring after Gussie Moran of the United States shocked tennis fans in 1949 when she wore the first visible pair of lacy bloomers.

In the 1950s, Karis Fagerros of the U.S. wore metallic gold panties. They were frowned upon by Wimbledon officials who banned them.

Today, of course, the panties are supposed to be seen.

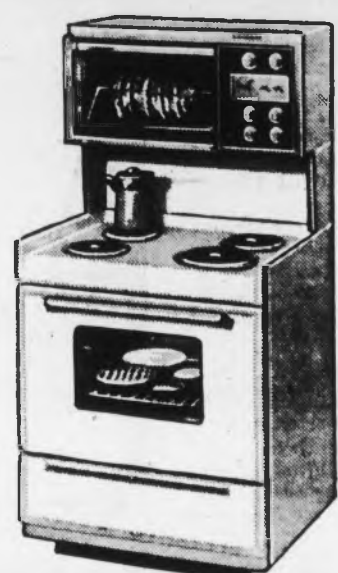

Miss Sparling will show a futuristic costume which has diamond-shaped wedges of material cut out of it, exposing portions of the midriff.

She expects the brief and more daring costumes to gain popularity steadily.

ATHENS (UPI) — It began as a shopping trip for Mrs. Aristotile Onassis. It ended in a mob scene.

The former U.S. first lady flew into Athens unannounced Thursday from the Isle of Skopelos to visit an antique shop. But as word spread Mrs. Onassis was shopping scores of Greeks rushed to see her.

"They almost wrecked my store," said antique dealer Kostas Charitakis. "There was nothing I could do."

Mrs. Onassis and sister-in-law, Mrs. Artemis Garofalidis, left during the hubbub. Before they left, Mrs. Onassis purchased four pieces of furniture and some silver.

ABM Compromise Doomed

Senate Geared for Crucial Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate unanimously agreed Thursday to end its four-week-old debate and to vote next Wednesday on the fate of President Nixon's proposal to deploy an antiballistic missile system.

The agreement came shortly after Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, dean of Senate Republicans, announced he no longer saw hope of an ABM compromise with the administration.

BACK AMENDMENT

He recommended "whole-hearted support" for an amendment sponsored by Senators John Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip Hart, D-Mich., that would prohibit ABM deployment during the current fiscal year ending next June 30.

Aiken's endorsement of the amendment he a r t e n e d ABM opponents, who claimed a better than even chance of winning when the vote on the Cooper-Hart move comes Wednesday.

CLOSE VOTE

Senators on both sides of the controversy predicted the issue would be decided by one or two votes.

The plan is to finish routine speeches Monday, then move into formal closing debate Tuesday and Wednesday, with each side allotted an equal amount of time.

If all 100 senators are present and voting, the Cooper-Hart amendment would need 51 votes to pass. A 50-50 split vote would defeat it for lack of a majority.

Plantain Lily

When I write to me asking what plants make a colorful display in a shaded flower bed, I usually suggest that they plant it up with tuberous begonias. These plants make a grand showing with their exotic blooms, and they get along surprisingly well around the north side of the house where they receive direct sunlight only in the early morning and late afternoon.

Begonias DO require a modicum of sun, however, or at least a bed open to the sky where they will get a reasonable amount of reflected light. For positions under trees and other more densely shaded locations, a better performer is the Plantain Lily.

attached to this hardy and rugged perennial plant.

The plantain lilies are natives of East Asia, especially Japan, and are used extensively in Japanese gardens for the texture effect of their foliage — the leaves are about the size and shape of the Aspidistra, but heavily grooved lengthwise, providing an interesting contrast to the smooth-leaved subjects nearby.

The flower stems rise about a foot or a little more above the foliage, blooming mostly in July and August, with white, blue, or lavender ball-shaped florets carried in one-sided clusters. They put on their best performance in rich, deep soil in a moist, shaded place, and I have seen them bloom their heads off in difficult spots under trees where nothing else but ferns would thrive.

inches of soil, as for peonies, and give plenty of water until nicely established.

Once they settle down comfortably, the Hostas can get by with very little attention. Frost, wind, drought — nothing seems to bother them much. I have never seen any trace of disease or blight on their handsome leaves, and about the only pest which has any appetite for them is the slug, and he is easily controlled with a metaldehyde bait.

One very fine variety is Hosta (or Funkia) sieboldiana elegans, with broad blue-green leaves and light blue flowers. Honeybells is a fairly new hybrid with bright shiny leaves and fragrant white flowers, good for cutting. Crispula is a variegated kind bearing green leaves with a white margin and flowering in pale purple.

Funkia (or Hosta) fortunei aureo-maculata is another variegated variety, grey-green leaves bordered with gold, while Variegata has dark green leaves patterned with cream or pale yellow, and bearing lilac-colored flowers on 18-inch stems.

These plants are not unduly expensive to buy, running from 85 cents for Variegata to around $2 for the new hybrid Honeybells.

Actually, this name is misleading, for it isn't a lily, although it is a member of the lily family, and it bears no relationship whatever to the plantain weed. Technically it bears the name of either Hosta or Funkia — botanists are still arguing which is correct.

Host was a Viennese physician attached to the Austrian emperor's court, while Funk was an 18th century German botanist, and as far as I can find out, it has never been decided definitely whose name should be

JACK SMITH

Cheers Short-Lived

The California State Senate, in its wisdom, passed a bill last week banning the sale after Jan. 1, 1975, of vehicles powered by internal combustion engines.

The internal combustion engine, for those who might not know, is the oily morass of wires, tubes, cylinders and widgets found under the hood of the automobile.

The Assembly would never pass the bill and if it did the Governor of California would never sign it.

The only reason it passed the Senate, we are told, is that the lobbyists representing California's new car dealers didn't think the bill had a chance, so they didn't bother to apply the usual pressures and blocks.

living in California would become older and older, and less and less efficient, belching more and more smog.

It would create a new aristocracy, a new power elite — the used car dealers and the auto repair men. In California's peculiar status structure they would rise above dentists, television news commentators, evangelists, morticians and chiropractors.

The mice made off with the cheese. But not for long.

It was a wishful little escapade at best. The frisky senators will be chastized and chastened. But it does demonstrate how essential it is to have a strong lobby, if legislators are to be restrained from romancing about the common good.

The internal combustion engine makes the automobile go. It also pollutes the air. It burns gasoline and gives off smog.

Banning its sale therefore would seem at first glance an enlightened piece of legislation.

They have made it plain, though, that they will get to work on the Assembly. The joke is over.

So the bill is doomed. It is up there now like a toy balloon. But their will be let out. It will empty and shrivel and fly wildly about for a moment and then crash.

Still, the bill may have done some good. It must suggest to the moguls of Detroit that the people are waking up. Maybe we no longer buy the story that the combustion engine is good for us, the only way to go.

Perhaps the senators can not be blamed for trying. California has been moving backward in so many ways the last year or two, maybe they thought, what the hell, let's go all the way back to the 19th century.

However, we all know those senators were only having a bit of sport, skylarking up there on the high wire with such bravado because they knew the net was down there to save them when they fall.

It isn't a good bill anyway. It doesn't go far enough. It would ban only new cars, not those already on the road. Thus, the 12,000,000 cars now pass the bill and if it did the Governor of California would never sign it.

The only reason it passed the Senate, we are told, is that the lobbyists representing California's new car dealers didn't think the bill had a chance, so they didn't bother to apply the usual pressures and blocks.

Also, we have learned something. When the cat's away the mice will play. Lobbyists, not expecting anything so bold, were loafing on the job. And what happened?

Those lobbyists, the watchdogs for 2,500 California new car motor dealers, are not about to be taken for a ride like that again.

As a matter of fact, I wouldn't be one bit surprised but what this call is from GOOD OLD ABBEY!

It isn't a good bill anyway. It doesn't go far enough. It would ban only new cars, not those already on the road. Thus, the 12,000,000 cars now Lobbyists, not expecting anything so bold, were loafing on the job. And what happened?

They needn't worry. As Aldous Huxley observed long ago, "Ford's in his heaven; all's well with the world."

LONDON (NANA)—They say Steve McQueen is planning to make fewer films in order to spend more time behind the camera. What a pity. Producers are a dollar-a-dozen, anyone who can run an office can produce. But where can you find a face like Steve's?

Topol, the Israeli actor, can have his choice of two Broadway musicals, my correspondent in New York, informs me—La Strada or a musical version of Teahouse of the August Moon. Topol is good in whatever he does.

Faye Dunaway doesn't care how small the role is, as long as it is a good one. This why she has emulated the British stars who will accept a few lines in a picture if they like them. Faye has two sequences, for a total of two weeks' work, in Little Big Man, which stars Dustin Hoffman (who, as you know, took a secondary role to Jon Voight in Midnight Cowboy). In the film, Dustin takes top billing while Faye will be marquee as "And Faye Dunaway as Mrs. Pendrake." That's the way her agent want it. It's like when Clint Eastwood told me he didn't care about the money, "but my agent does."

Clint Eastwood will have to leave his picture in Yugoslavia to do some dubbing for his Two Mules for Sister Sara, in Rome. It's easier than flying back to Hollywood. His co-star in the film, Shirley MacLaine has been busy being a mother to her 13-year-old daughter Sachie —getting her from the school in England for the long "hols." Sachie likes it here and Shirley is hoping for a film to be made in London, so she can see more of her attractive daughter.

Leanne Caron's asking price for her gorgeous home in Knightsbridge is a bit more than $150,000 — walking down Pont Street in Belgravia, I saw Sammy Davis Jr.'s new Rolls Royce. But Sammy wasn't in it — a gorgeous girl in a brief mini aligned. Sammy is generous with his possessions.

All the way to London tricked the news of Barbra Streisand's opening night flop in Las Vegas. Knowing how thorough she always is, I found this hard to believe. All well, it's comforting to us lesser people to know that no one is perfect all the time... Dean Martin's Riviera stand, on the other hand, is a smash. Dean is always easy, never presses. He never did, not even in the old days when he was partners with Jerry Lewis, which is why we thought he might not make it as a solo. Ha, and again ha. They both have done better so bold than they ever did in tandem.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Thinking Aloud

It is a mistake in understanding to use the words "work," "labor," and " toil" as synonyms; for "work" is what a man needs to do even if he isn't being paid for it; "labor" is what he has to do because he can't do anything better; and "toil" is what should be done by a beast or a machine.

If higher education doesn't provide a base for both personal satisfaction and social responsibility, it has evaded its primary task; and by these two criteria alone, most colleges fail their own entrance exams.

It's interesting how Hitler has gone down in history as a "madman," while Stalin has not; yet the latter's quiet and savage butchery within his own borders was surely as paranoid as Hitler's butchery of Jews and foreigners.

Some speakers imagine they can avoid giving boredom by speaking for 10 minutes instead of 40 — but a true bore can pack as much tedium into 10 minutes as another man can into 40, for a bore is an extension in space, not merely in time.

The same leaders who, before the election, affirm loudly that the ship exists for the sake of the passengers, turn around and by their deeds proclaim that the passengers exist for the sake of the ship (of state).

Chronic "hummers" are not exhibiting good spirits; they are, more often than not, repressing low spirits. (As Sir William Osler, the great physician, once candidly admitted to his medical students, "I burn that I may not weep.")

A better prophet than all the hard-headed "realists" of his time was Franz Grillparzer, the Austrian dramatist, who observed well over a century ago that "The path of western civilization leads from humanity through rationality to bestiality."

FRAMEWORK FOR church goes up. Working on structure are, from bottom, Mr. Falconer, Mr. Medames and Mr. Lewis.—(Klaus Muentler)

Duncan Community Effort

Parish Builds Church

DUNCAN — The building of the new Glad Tidings Tabernacle church on Trunk Road is an old-fashioned community effort involving young and old members of the congregation which number 35.

The local congregation of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada began its work at the beginning of May and it is hoped that the first services can be held in the basement rooms this fall.

Because of the voluntary labor, the cost for the structure will be kept to a minimum of about $30,000. The mortgage money is being raised through the church's headquarters at Toronto.

Pastor Rev. Gordon Falconer said the parish would have a 20-year mortgage. The project superintendent, a teacher at Mount Prevost junior high school, and a member of the parish, is the only paid man on the job.

He designed the building, prepared all working drawings and works side by side with other parishioners. The building is 36 feet wide, 90 feet long and 26 feet high, not including basement facilities for Sunday school and a chapel. The church will seat 200 people.

Oldest voluntary laborer is 66-year-old George Melnoh. Another of the regular volunteers, Albie McDames, a Chemainus sawmill worker, said the building of the church was a sacrifice for the members of the parish as far as the raising of the money and the many working hours were concerned.

Mr. Lewis said that every day four men put in about four hours each and the women members of the church provide refreshments. However, the latter will help with the finishing work when the cedar shake roof is completed.

Cadets' Show Impresses Defence Chief

By RUTH McKELLAR
COMOX — A display of seamanship, marching and performance of general duties that would have made any sailor proud, greeted Gen. J. V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, Thursday when he visited HMCS Quadra, Goose Spit, near Comox.

The base is a training centre for sea cadets who attend for periods of two weeks training. They attend from all parts of Canada and while at Quadra, receive drill and rifle instruction and spend many hours on seamanship.

The general was met at the wharf in Comox by cadets manning the admiral's barge. Arriving at Quadra, he was piped ashore and taken to the parade square for inspection of divisions. He was accompanied on his inspection tour by Lt.-Cmdr. Stuart Alsagard, commanding officer of HMCS Quadra.

General Allard, inspected the sea cadets and addressed them briefly.

He said his department encouraged the cadet movement and realized the young men were the leaders of tomorrow. He also spoke in French to a group of French-Canadian cadets and then extended a welcome to Canada to a group of American sea cadets who are also in camp. Five of the American boys were in the guard of honor.

Following the march past, Gen. Allard inspected quarters and saw cadets at work in many phases of the training program. At about 10 a.m. he boarded an auxiliary harbourcraft for a trip out into Comox Bay to watch Cadets put on a display of seamanship.

A "Man overboard" technique was demonstrated, and three sailing cutter crews demonstrated their ability to put up and take down sails quickly and efficiently.

Then the general was piped aboard a cutter to be rowed back to Comox. The crew of cadets sat trim and erect with oars held high as the general boarded the boat.

Gen. Allard said that he was very impressed with what he had seen and felt that the cadet movement in Canada was a very worthwhile service.

He noted that many officers gave up their holidays and some even gave up the whole summer just to be on hand for the training period.

'System, Not Girl At Fault'

A Victoria woman said Thursday that the CPR was wrong in trying to blame inexperienced summer help for any possible overcharge aboard the Princess Marguerite.

Mrs. Dawn Cropp said her own transaction, which brought the problem to light, had official sanction.

STEWART AGREED

She said the chief steward on the Victoria-Seattle ferry was consulted and agreed the 31 cents she was charged for a 15-cent cup of coffee was correct.

Mrs. Cropp said faulty calculation had been used in setting the exchange rate on her $2 Canadian bill.

Purchases aboard the ferry must be paid for in U.S. funds. Mrs. Cropp's original complaint resulted in an explanation by the CPR that the fault lay with an inexperienced cashier who was working as a summer replacement.

OTHERS?

The company asked that others who might have been overcharged in the same fashion get in touch with the ferry agent.

Mrs. Cropp said the chief steward was standing alongside the cashier at the time and told her the rate of exchange she was charging was correct.

Mulieri

Psychologist Leaving Schools

Dr. Giuseppe Mulieri, head of the Greater Victoria school district's psychological testing division for nearly two years, has resigned to take a new post in Italy.

Dr. Mulieri will head a "medical psychoeducational centre" in Castiglione delle Stiviere, he said Thursday. The city is in northern Italy.

He will evaluate special learning problems in the disabled. "It is a very challenging and attractive offer," said the psychologist, who will leave for Italy with his family late this month.

The Greater Victoria school board has not yet named a replacement.

Socreds Choose Mayor

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney swamped all opposition by taking the Nanaimo Social Credit Constituency Association nomination on the first ballot with 55 of the 59 votes available during a nominating convention in the Tally Ho Thursday night.

His opponents were marine surveyor Mike Murray and vocational school automotive instructor Harvey Brooks.

Until 30 minutes earlier, Mayor Ney told friends that he was undecided.

He said he intended to fulfill his term as mayor so that he could keep election promises made two years ago. The term ends at the end of this year.

Mayor Ney said that despite a good record of provincial expenditures in the area, including Cedar and Pearson bridges, hospital expansion and highway paving, there was still much left to do.

He said the two-lane Island highway was outdated and a four-lane highway was needed.

He added that he would press for a promenade construction in Departure Bay.

"That recreational area is one of the best but not too much has been spent there," said Mayor Ney.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Canada was one of the few nations without a highway policy.

The Liberals had promoted North Vancouver Island roads as possible Trans-Canada Highway extensions during the federal election. But they immediately reversed that attitude when the elections were over, he claimed.

Manitoba Pact

WINNIPEG (C.P.) — Premier Ed Streyer said an agreement with a Swiss company, Churchill Forest Industries Manitoba Ltd., has been modified to prevent export of raw materials and increase the company's risk capital. The company is a subsidiary of Monaca AG of St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Indian Policy Rapped

Strachan Starts Cowichan Drive

DUNCAN — For the past 17 years, the Socred government in British Columbia had failed to recognize its obligation to the province's Indian people, said Robert Strachan, NDP candidate for Cowichan-Malahat, Thursday.

He made the comment during a visit to Cowichan Indian band's new housing development in the Boys Road area.

It was the kickoff for his campaign to win his seat as M.L.A. which he has held for the past 17 years. Mr. Strachan is confident that not only will he win but that he will end up with a greater majority than in 1966.

He said a campaign was like a horse race — "It is not won until it is over. However, there is no indication that I have lost any support. I am very optimistic. After Aug. 27, I shall again be the M.L.A. for the Cowichan-Malahat constituency and because I am no longer the provincial leader of the NDP party I will be able to concentrate more on the constituency."

Referring to the Indian housing development, which, since 1967 has resulted in the construction of 33 new houses, Mr. Strachan suggested the necessity for better co-operation between the federal and the provincial government which, he felt, would be possible without changing existing laws.

He said: "For instance, I cannot see why the provincial government should not accept the responsibility for the maintenance of roads in the housing development."

"A great part of our road construction money comes from general revenue and the gasoline tax as well as the sales tax, both of which are also paid by Indian people, are 25 per cent of the provincial general revenue."

"There are also the natural resources which originally belonged to the Indians."

If we cannot provide those basic services for the Indians, then I think we are still way back in the last century. They are citizens of this province and they should get these services."

Bylaw Fights Insects

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan council, at a special meeting Thursday night gave two readings to a bylaw designed to battle the mosquito threat in the Crofton-Westholme area.

The bylaw requires owners or occupants of real property to prevent infestation by mosquitoes or other noxious or destructive insects and to clear the property of such insects.

The third reading will be given at Wednesday's regular council meeting but aldermen decided to wait for final adoption while an injunction against aerial spraying by the municipality is before the courts.

Mayor Donald Martine said the bylaw was patterned after similar bylaws at Penikese and Kelowna.

U.S. 'Ready' for South Vietnam Partitioning

By DAVID KRASLOW AND TOM LAMBERT

Los Angeles Times Columnar Service

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration is ready to accept a de facto partitioning of South Vietnam as part of the price for setting the Vietnam war, the Los Angeles Times has learned.

And there are indications that the present South Vietnamese government, albeit reluctantly, has reconciled itself to such a development.

It is believed further that the United States has quietly explored such a concept with other governments, including perhaps France and the Soviet Union.

BY OFFICIALS
As envisaged by administration officials here, the partitioning would not follow the conventional post-Second World War pattern of east-west or north-south divisions of such nations as Korea and Germany.

Rather, it would involve tacit recognition of Communist-held areas within South Vietnam in which the National Liberation Front would retain military units and administrative control. The result might be depending on what areas are conceded to the NLF — a speckled map of South Vietnam.

The Saigon government would exert only titular authority over certain postal, traffic and trade services through and within them.

"We are in a situation where we have to accept realities," one official said, "and one reality is that in any short-term political settlement you cannot expect the NLF to give up territory over which it now has extensive control. What happens over the long run is something we can't foretell."

SOUTH VIETNAM
A former Johnson and Nixon administration official said "it is impossible to foresee a postwar South Vietnam in which the NLF would be excluded from jurisdiction over certain parts of the country."

These sources agreed that what they were saying, in effect, is that the enemy cannot realistically be expected to surrender at the bargaining table what American and South Vietnamese armies have not been able to win on the battlefield.

Officials privately acknowledge that the outcome of the elections vigorously advocated by the Nixon administration and the Saigon regime would have to reflect this situation.

"There will not be a winner-take-all election," an official said. "There cannot be, and neither side expects it."

AS EVIDENCE

The precise formula for sharing power, what military force the NLF would be permitted to retain, the ground rules for the elections, the areas to be conceded to the NLF, how to guarantee a division of the country are all matters to be settled during a long and complex bargaining process.

As evidence that President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam is reconciled to a division of his country, an official quoted Thieu as having said recently that "sometimes you have to give up a leg to save the body."

The Times, unable immediately to determine when and where Thieu publicly made such a remark.

Officials refused to say whether the NLF or North Vietnam have been sounded out privately, directly or indirectly, on the partitioning concept.

IDEA ACCEPTED

At the least, however, it seems probable that the Communists have learned indirectly that the United States and South Vietnam accept the idea of de facto partitioning.

It is clear from the history of Vietnam diplomacy that Washington and Hanoi have often communicated secretly with each other through third parties, particularly in trying out new proposals.

That is probably what has been transpiring recently, despite the public denunciations and apparent deadlock at the Paris peace talks.

Aldrin stands near solar wind device about 100 feet in front of lunar lander

Photos Show Mars As Bleak as Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 6 televised spectacular close-ups of tortured terrain on Mars Thursday night, scenes of crater-riddled desolation strikingly similar to landscapes on the moon.

The tiny space voyager, on a mission to end centuries of speculation over whether the mysterious red planet would support life, skimmed to within 2,130 miles then sent Earthward a string of most-detailed-ever photos.

The profusion of huge jagged craters, many with smaller craters inside, seemed to indicate that if Mars has life at all in the areas pictured it could be only minute.

The shots showed thin canal-like lines, what appeared to be mountainous highlands, precipitous scarps, meandering rills believed to be cracks, and scattered rubble — all similar to photos of the moon.

The area pictured was a dark equatorial band that some scientists had thought might have vegetation because it changes color seasonally. Another theory is that the change is due to sunlight hitting rocks at a different angle at different times of the Martian year.

The televised picture show was confusing as viewed on monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Initial pictures were an hour late due to trouble in running the spacecraft's signals through a computer.

The relay delay was due, a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, to a missing element in the signal sent from the spacecraft that made a computer unable to process the pictures.

The first shot received, about 6:30 p.m. PDT, showed an area of Mare Erythraeum, a bleak desert area pocked with craters, the largest two or three miles across. The whole shot covered about 50 miles.

The spacecraft's two cameras, one with a telescopic lens to show objects as small as a football stadium, were programmed for 12 pictures each. They were aimed at equatorial deserts and dark areas that some scientists believe could be vegetation.

The equatorial belt was chosen for its variety of Martian terrain features.

Later pictures in the series also were heavily marked with craters. No. 9 showed one deep, with a smaller one inside. No. 10 looked as if pepper had been sprinkled on it, showing two quiet large pits, perhaps five miles across.

A spokesman said that examination of more distant pictures taken by Mariner 6 on Wednesday disclosed a crater 300 miles across, with

Film Shows 'Magnificent Desolation'

● Next moonwalk can be doubled, Armstrong says. Page 6

HOUSTON (AP) — Spectacular color pictures taken by men on the moon were released Thursday by the space agency and show why the Apollo 11 astronauts called the lunar terrain "magnificent desolation" with "a stark beauty all its own."

In pictures taken on the surface, the gold, white and black colors of the ungainly lander ship clearly stand out, as do the astronauts, devices and flag they left behind.

The pictures show an eerie, unreal world with a coal-black sky and rugged grey terrain that turns almost white like snow where the sun reflects off it.

In a six-minute color motion picture film shown to television viewers Thursday night, Armstrong and Aldrin were shown saluting the American flag. The camera was shooting pictures at the rate of one frame per second, making the moon men's movements look like an old-fashioned movie. Their movements were fast and jerky on the film.

Tel Offer Finds Cool Reception

By DON COLLINS

It may not be good enough.

This was the warning from telephone workers in Victoria Thursday night as they reacted to the formula hailed by their own leaders as a means of ending the B.C. Telephone Co. strike.

Ken John, a spokesman for the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers in Victoria, said initial reaction to the proposed agreement was "rather disappointing."

PLANT LOCAL

"If all we're going to get is what we've been told so far we're going to get, there is a chance the membership won't go for it," said Mr. John, president of the federation's plant local here.

He was quick to add, however: "We haven't heard the full details yet. And that may well change the picture."

Those details, contained in the agreement signed in Vancouver Thursday by union and company officials, will be spelled out at a

Presidential Hopes Dashed by Mishap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Theodore Sorenson, a long-time adviser to the Kennedy brothers, said in a television interview Thursday that Edward Kennedy recognizes his presidential prospects have been "damaged, if not destroyed" by the tragic auto accident he was involved in last month.

Sorenson said Kennedy felt that if he had continued to be available for the presidency, it would "add to more hate mail, more conflicting pressures, more speculation as to his motives. He simply would be more comfortable out."

Wheat Pricing In New Crisis

● Wheat price decline won't edge in the sale of surplus wheat in a shrinking world market. Page 22

LONDON (CP) — New anxiety over a heightening transatlantic clash on wheat selling prices was reported in Canadian quarters following the European Common Market decision to push up export subsidies immediately to match previous price cuts by both Canada and the United States.

Senior officials of the major wheat-exporting countries meet in a Canada House conference hall today in an attempt to end the market stealing and competitive price slashes. There had been hope, at least among Canadian authorities, that the Common Market would not implement higher subsidies before the conference opened.

The concern among these authorities was that the Americans, confronted by this fresh price challenge from Europe, might initiate another round of price cutting to maintain an

What Is a Woman?

Oldest Question Posed For Court's Decision

LONDON (AP) — The son of Britain's former chief Boy Scout has asked a court to decide whether the beautiful model he married six years ago is just one of the girls or is really a man.

A lawyer said Arthur Cameron Corbett, 49, contends that tall, raven-haired April Ashley, 34, is a man and their marriage should be annulled. He said Miss Ashley insists she is a woman and will oppose the suit.

The case raises tremendous legal and medical questions, including "perhaps the oldest question in the world — what is a woman?" James Comyn, Miss Ashley's lawyer, told Justice Abn Orr Thursday.

Miss Ashley began life as George Jamieson and shipped out as a deckhand on a British merchant ship after leaving school. But she had herself legally declared a woman following a series of sex-change operations in Casablanca in 1960.

As April Ashley — 34-24-36 when she was a popular London fashion model — she met Corbett, heir to Lord Rowland, former chief Boy Scout and governor of Tasmania.

Comyn told the court Thursday the case would involve a great deal of expert evidence concerning Miss Ashley's medical condition at various times. He asked that the hearing be put back about a month from the scheduled Nov. 10. Justice Orr withheld decision.

Three Safe, Two Die In Cave-In

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — Using hands and the only shovel available, workers rescued three men from a mine cave-in, where two other men died Wednesday, 240 miles west of Edmonton.

Rud McLeod, 56, of East Coulee, Alta., and a man from Germany were killed. Their bodies were recovered a short time after the accident. The second man's name was not available.

The cave-in occurred as the men prepared to place timber in an excavation, 13 feet deep into the side of a hill, when a section of the hillside collapsed. The section was about six feet thick and estimated to weigh about 30 tons.

Nixon:

India Police Peace?

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — President Nixon carried his new Asian doctrine to India Thursday and discussed with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi the possibility that India might help police a settlement of the war in Vietnam.

Another prime topic on the United States president's agenda with Mrs. Gandhi was the state of Indo-Pakistan relations and the delicate question of resumption of U.S. military aid to Pakistan which was suspended during fighting over the disputed border area of Kashmir in 1965.

GANDHI FIRM

Mrs. Gandhi was reported to have spoken firmly with Nixon and warned that another arms race would develop if arms supplies to Pakistan were resumed. Nixon will have further talks on the touchy issue when he arrives in Pakistan.

The president flew into New Delhi earlier Thursday. The 23-hour visit was the fourth scheduled stage of Nixon's visit to five Asian countries and Communist Romania.

HAD BIG TALK

Almost immediately after arrival from Bangkok, Thailand, Nixon went into a 90-minute discussion with Mrs. Gandhi. Among the other topics they discussed were the threat from China, regional co-operation in Asia, population control, economic development and overall political matters.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon gave Mrs. Gandhi a briefing on his new Asia doctrine, which he has been explaining during his Asian tour.

The Nixon doctrine stresses withdrawal of American combat forces from the Asian mainland, leaving Asian countries to fight internal subversion with their own forces. However, the U.S. would discontinue technical assistance backed by air and sea power to deter China.

Ziegler said the two leaders also talked about the possibility that India might play a supervisory role in policing a settlement of the Vietnam war.

AIDES AIDED TALKS

India is chairman of the International Control Commission for Vietnam, set up under the 1954 Geneva agreement which ended the French colonial war against the Viet Minh, forerunners of the Viet Cong guerrillas. Canada and Poland are the other committee members.

While the two leaders were holding private talks, their top advisers met separately to discuss issues in greater detail.

Contempt Charged To Reds

PARIS (UPI) — The United States told the Communists Thursday their stance in the Vietnam peace talks showed "contempt" for a democratic solution to the war.

The statement by U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge, one of the strongest he has made during the talks, drew an unusually moderate reply from the Communist side in the 28th session of the six-month-old conference.

Lodge accused the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations of adopting a rigid stance of rejection of all allied proposals, stalling for time in the hope that the United States eventually would either abandon the war or accept the Communist demands.

Hit Copter Triggers Viet Battle

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting broke out near the demilitarized zone Thursday for the second time this week.

United States officials did not view the new fighting on South Vietnamese territory with alarm, however.

The battle involved U.S. troops who had gone to rescue the crew of a U.S. marine helicopter that had been shot down. In a fight with entrenched North Vietnamese troops, three Americans were killed and 20 were wounded. The Americans reported they killed 13 Northern soldiers.

One helicopter crew member was killed and three were wounded. U.S. infantry and tanks succeeded in evacuating the crew, but then ran into heavy fire.

The weekly casualty summary of the U.S. command listed 110 Americans killed in the seven-day period that ended at midnight last Saturday night.

'Heavy' Israeli Losses

Syrian Jets Retaliate

By UPI

Syrian Jets Thursday attacked Israeli positions on the occupied Golan Heights, a Damascus spokesman said. It was the first such Syrian aerial raid on the territory since it was captured by the Jewish state in the 1967 Middle East War.

The Syrian spokesman said the assault against Israeli positions, which also included artillery bombardments, was in retaliation for enemy action against Syrian positions. He referred to Wednesday's Israeli air attack on Syrian army units in the foothills of Mount Hermon.

Salvadorean Pullout Commences

By UPI

El Salvador started to withdraw its troops from neighboring Honduras Thursday under the eyes of Organization of American States military observers.

The Salvadorean government said the "redeployment," as the OAS-ordered withdrawal was termed, would be carried out in a "technical and orderly" manner. Positions the Salvadoreans are abandoning in Honduras are being turned over to OAS troops.

Knife Rush Halted Within Five Feet

Japanese Just Misses U.S. Official

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese with upraised knife rushed in the direction of U.S. State Secretary William Rogers at Tokyo's International Airport Thursday but was overpowered by United States and Japanese security guards.

Joseph McNulty, 39, state department security officer, seized the Japanese when he was within five feet of Rogers and with the help of Japan's security guards subdued him.

During the scuffle, U.S. Ambassador Armin Meyer, who was within five feet of Rogers, off to Seoul, South Korea, was thrown to the ground but was unharmed.

NOT SO SURE

The man, Shigetatsu Hamanaka, 21, apparently knocked down Meyer while he was rushing at Rogers, police said. But McNulty said he was not sure the man was charging Rogers.

Police said they found a letter on Hamanaka containing comments on demands that the U.S. return the big base of Okinawa to Japan, a warm issue among Japanese.

They quoted him as saying he had sought to retaliate for U.S. soldiers using bayonets to push back leftist demonstrators on Okinawa in June.

Rogers had just ended a three-day meeting with U.S. and Japanese cabinet ministers at which the subject of the return of Okinawa was brought up. He was smiling and unshaken after the incident.

Rogers had just said farewell to Japanese officials when the attack came.

SECOND MAN

Meyer was the second U.S. ambassador in Tokyo to have been involved in such incidents. Former U.S. ambassador Edwin R. Reischauer was stabbed in the thigh in 1964 by a deranged Japanese youth, who attacked him in the U.S. Embassy compound.

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. State Secretary William Rogers assured South Korea on Thursday that American troop withdrawals from South Vietnam will not mean the United States will not honor its commitments.

"We intend to live up to our treaty obligations," he told a state dinner given by Premier Chung Il Kwon a few hours after arriving on his first official visit.

NIXON ORDER

Rogers said he recognizes that there had been apprehension here about the United States' future intentions in Korea, following President Nixon's order for withdrawal of 25,000 troops from Vietnam.

"One of the purposes of my being here is to assure you that you should have no apprehension," he added. "The United States and the Republic of South Korea have solemn treaty obligations. We have 50,000 men stationed in Korea. In view of these obligations, in view of our presence here, you should have no fear."

Kim Il Sung as it was for the South Korean hosts. Rogers came here from Tokyo on the second leg of an Asian Pacific tour which takes him to Taipei, Hong Kong, Bali, Brisbane and Wellington.

Pope Paul, Uganda's Obote

Nigeria, Biafra Like Papal Mediation Bid

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The throb of tribal drums and the wail of long, hide-covered horns welcomed Pope Paul to the heart of Africa on Thursday for a visit that quickly became a mission to bring peace to Nigeria and Biafra, torn by two years of civil war.

No sooner had the 71-year-old Roman Catholic leader landed here on the north shore of Lake Victoria than both sides in the conflict on Africa's west coast agreed at least to talk about a settlement.

DURING FLIGHT
On his flight from Italy, Pope Paul told correspondents that he intended to bring together today the Nigerian and Biafran delegations who had come to Kampala for his visit.

A high Vatican aide said the Pope was willing to stay in Africa a month if this could pave the way to a Nigerian-Biafran peace. He is scheduled to visit Uganda for three days.

BOTH SIDES
Both delegations have agreed to meet here if invited by the pontiff or President Milton Obote of Uganda.

The official purpose of the Pope's visit was to close the first meeting of African bishops and consecrate the altar of a church dedicated to the first saints and martyrs of black Africa, who died at the end of the 19th century.

ANOTHER ROUND
But the visit, punctuated by the beating of jungle drums and toms, songs dedicated to "His Holiness" and a turnout of around 40,000 people, turned into a full-scale effort to stage another round of Nigerian peace talks.

At Entebbe Airport, Pope Paul was awaited by Chief Anthony Enahoro, one of federal Nigeria's top negotiators, and four African heads of state.

NO BIAFRANS
The Biafrans were not seen at the airport. Possibly they adhered to diplomatic protocol and remained away from official functions because Uganda does not recognize Biafra, which has broken away from Nigeria.

But a dispatch from Owerri, headquarters for Biafra's leadership Information Commissioner Ilegwu Eke, told a news conference Biafra is ready to negotiate peace without preconditions.

In Kampala, Biafra's roving ambassador, Austin Okwu, said he had accepted the Pope's offer to mediate the civil war.

OFFICIAL RADIO
Nigeria's official radio in the last few days rejected mediation by the Pope.

Although federal Nigeria has rejected him as a mediator, Pope Paul has the support of President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia. Both recognize Biafra.

He also received backing from the 44 prelates who closed the first all-Africa bishops symposium. The bishops—including seven cardinals—sent a personal message to the leaders of both sides. The conference also issued a plea that "the fratricidal strife which stains our beloved land be brought to an end."

Moon Encore Much Longer

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11 commander Neil A. Armstrong said Thursday a moon walk period more than twice as long as his two hours and 32 minutes would be "reasonable" for the next Americans who go to the moon.

Armstrong made the comment during a briefing for the next moon landing crew and others in the American astronaut corps.

TWO WALKS
Apollo 12 commander Charles Conrad asked Armstrong if he felt two moon walks of longer duration than the one Apollo 11 stroll "was reasonable."

"Neil told him it was," said public affairs officer John McLeish, who is in quarantine with the Apollo 11 crew.

"He (Armstrong) was well satisfied with the pressure suit and associated equipment," McLeish said.

Fifteen astronauts sat on the other side of the glass wall while the Apollo 11 crew made their report. Among them were Conrad's Apollo 12 crewmates, Richard Gordon and Alan Bean.

A number of other astronauts watched the session on closed-circuit television from nearby.

Two dozen mice in another part of the lunar receiving laboratory were set to become the first earth creatures to have moon material injected directly into their bodies.

In an experiment, considered critical in the search for any moon-dust dangers, scientists mixed lunar particles with a solution to inject it into the stomachs of germ-free white mice.

If there are moon microbes in the dust, the scientists expect the mice to react swiftly since they were bred in a sterilized environment and tests show they have no other germs in their bodies.

The Apollo 11 astronauts have adjusted well to their isolation, a space agency spokesman quarantined with them told reporters.

The space trio conversed with their families through a glass wall.

Bonn Admits to Tests Of U.S. Nerve Gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Richard McCarthy (D-N.Y.) contended Thursday the United States has been supplying the West German army with small amounts of nerve gas for testing purposes.

McCarthy, who said his information came from a reliable, non-government source, said the arrangement has been in effect for "several years."

He told a news conference he did not know what type of tests were involved and whether they were being conducted in laboratories by scientists or in the field by troops.

He said West Germany had asked this year for a "larger quantity" of nerve gas.

"I state categorically that we have supplied them with small quantities of nerve gas for testing," declared McCarthy, a frequent and prominent critic of the Pentagon's chemical and biological warfare program.

(In Bonn, a West German defence ministry spokesman said the West German armed forces have received small amounts of gas from the United States at various times for test purposes.)

(The spokesman said the gas was needed to test gas warning equipment such as that carried on Leopard tanks, and to test gas masks and methods of neutralizing gas.)

Informed of the West German announcement, McCarthy told a reporter the explanation "sounds reasonable" but that it also raised some serious questions.

It leaves open whether the arrangement infringes on the West European protocol and whether such shipment has been cleared with other NATO nations," McCarthy said.

BASIC ISSUE
"But the broader and most basic issue," he said, "is whether the United States should give chemical and biological warfare agents, regardless of their amounts, to other countries."

"I regard them as similar to nuclear weapons, which by American law, prevent us from giving to other nations."

late Thursday only 18 persons had been identified.

Police said the tank cars broke away from a freight train performing switching operations at Gostivar station and travelled eight miles before smashing into the passenger train.

The accident occurred along the eastern slope of Sar Plaruna, one of Yugoslavia's highest peaks, in the Rodhopes mountains of Macedonia.

Runaway Tank Cars Kill 29 in Crash

BELGRADE (UPI) — Police said Thursday 29 persons were killed and 17 injured in a collision Wednesday night in which three huge runaway tank cars smashed into a passenger train on a Yugoslav mountain peak.

The force of the impact of the 40-ton tankers loaded with industrial oil was so great that the 22-foot-long lead car of the two-unit passenger train was crushed into a six-foot long hunk of scrap, authorities said.

Rescue teams worked throughout the night to free the dead and injured from the mangled cars of the train. By late Thursday only 18 persons had been identified.

Legislature Raided

Bengal Police Riot

CALCUTTA, India (Reuters) — Uniformed police broke into the West Bengal state legislature assembly Thursday and smashed chairs, microphones and windows to protest the killing of a policeman Wednesday by a crowd near the Calcutta outskirts.

Ministers of the Communist-dominated United Front government ran as 3,000 policemen, carrying the body of their dead colleague, arrived at the assembly house and burst into the chamber where the assembly was meeting.

The policeman was killed when officers went to investigate trouble among peasants at a village near Basanti, just outside Calcutta.

A crowd surrounded the police and opened fire, killing one policeman and injuring others.

Angry police rushed into the assembly shouting at the Communist ministers. They rampaged through the building, attacking anyone who came in their way.

The speaker hurriedly adjourned the house as ministers, members, press reporters and visitors fled to safety in different rooms and barricaded the doors against the police.

Spy's Getaway Driver Foils U.K. Extradition

DUBLIN (UPI) — Sean Bourke, a 34-year old Irish convict who helped British master spy George Blake escape from prison, won an appeal Thursday when the Irish supreme court ruled he could not be extradited to Britain.

"I had been sitting on the edge of my seat while judgment was being given but I was confident I would win the case," the burly Irishman said. "It's far better than a possible 15 years in (London's) Brixton Prison."

He carried a suitcase and said, "I had three pairs of underwear, three shirts and three pairs of socks all packed up in case I had to spend the next few months on remand."

"I will have a few pairs (of beer) and after that I will have a few more pints and then I will have a jolly good booze-up," Bourke said about his immediate plans. "Then I go for a holiday somewhere."

He fought the extradition bid on grounds it was for a political offence. Irish law forbids extradition for political offences.

The British began extradition proceedings last October after Bourke returned to Ireland from Moscow where he had lived since helping Blake escape in 1966.

Bourke was a fellow prisoner of Blake's at Wormwood Scrubs prison in London. After his release, Bourke helped Blake escape, hid him beneath the seat of a panel truck and drove the convicted spy to East Germany and asylum.

Blake received a 42-year sentence in 1961 for giving information to the Soviet Union that was said to have meant death or prison for 30 British agents and destruction of the British spy network in the Middle East.

The Case Of Missed Suitcases

LONDON (Reuters) — Red-faced London Airport officials Thursday faced the case of the missing cases—1,000 suitcases and their anonymous owners somewhere overseas. The trouble began Wednesday when name tags were ripped off suitcases by the airport luggage conveyor system. Their owners were already boarding planes as the cases began piling up in front of frantic airport staff.

New arrival says goodbye

Otters Try Out B.C. Waters

The sea otters are back.

At about 5 p.m. Thursday, 19 female otters and 10 males were released near Bunsby Island, 220 miles northwest of Victoria. Dr. James Hatter, director of the B.C. fish and wildlife branch, said, "It all went off like clockwork. They got in the water and were cleaning themselves and swimming around like they belonged there."

Dr. Hatter said one otter was obviously in poor health and was not released, but the others were in fine shape.

Don Blood, regional wildlife biologist for Vancouver Island, said the animals were "young adults that should have a good chance of survival." He also said they "really took to the water."

The area where the animals were released is dotted with reefs and shoals. It contains plenty of shellfish and molluscs, which the otters feed on, Mr. Blood said.

The otters are from herds in the Aleutian Islands. Nineteenth-century fur traders hunted them into extinction in B.C.

Although the animals are in good health a couple of men will watch them for a few days to see how they disperse up the island, Mr. Blood said.

Their survival in B.C. waters will depend upon whether or not they are left alone. The B.C. government, with co-operation from B.C. Indians, intends to keep them under strict surveillance.

Thirty more otters were released in the Pacific 25 miles north of Aberdeen, Wash. Five were taken by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to be donated to Tacoma's Point Defiance Zoo.

Allard Visits Quadra

Cadets Impress Defence Chief

By RUTH McKELLAR
COMOX — A display of seamanship, marching and performance of general duties that would have made any sailor proud, greeted Gen. J. V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, Thursday when he visited HMCS Quadra, Goose Spit, near Comox.

The base is a training centre for sea cadets who attend for periods of two weeks training. They attend from all parts of Canada and while at Quadra, receive drill and rifle instruction and spend many hours on seamanship.

The general was met at the wharf in Comox by cadets manning the admiral's barge. Arriving at Quadra, he was piped ashore and taken to the parade square for inspection of divisions. He was accompanied on his inspection tour by Lt. Cmdr. Stuart Alsagard, commanding officer of HMCS Quadra.

General Allard, inspected the sea cadets and addressed them briefly.

He said his department encouraged the cadet movement and realized the young men were the leaders of tomorrow. He also spoke in French to a group of French-Canadian cadets and then extended a welcome to Canada to a group of American sea cadets who are also in camp. Five of the American boys were in the guard of honor.

Following the march past, Gen. Allard inspected quarters and saw cadets at work in many phases of the training program. At about 10 a.m. he boarded an auxiliary harbourcraft for a trip out into Comox Bay to watch Cadets put on a display of seamanship.

A "Man overboard" technique was demonstrated, and three sailing cutter crews demonstrated their ability to put up and take down sails quickly and efficiently.

Then the general was piped aboard a cutter to be rowed back to Comox. The crew of cadets sat trim and erect with oars held high as the general boarded the boat.

Gen. Allard said that he was very impressed with what he had seen and felt that the cadet movement in Canada was a very worthwhile service.

TRAINING HELP

He noted that many officers gave up their holidays and some even gave up the whole summer just to be on hand for the training period.

The general returns to Ottawa today and the sea cadets returned to normal training after meeting their "chief".

Gabriola Hall Destroyed In Night Fire

GABRIOLA ISLAND—Fire destroyed the $50,000 Gabriola Island Agricultural Association hall Wednesday night.

Ted Eastholme, one of the voluntary firemen who was first on the scene, said he was on his way home when he spotted the glow in the sky at about 11 p.m. At first he thought the fire was at his house across the street from the hall.

By the time he got there, the alarm had already been turned in by Norm Nash who had been just ahead of him on the road.

At its peak, the blaze could be spotted in Nanaimo, according to RCMP officer who came to investigate later.

The one-storey 40-ft. by 60 ft. building could not be saved despite firefighting efforts of about 50 men.

"It could have been worse if it hadn't been for the men and the old fire truck," Mr. Eastholme said.

"The truck is a 1947 GMC do-it-yourself conversion job," he said.

"Luck was with us, too. The roof and the wall all fell inward."

"There were trees only about 15 feet from the building. As it was we had help from some bulldozers but they didn't arrive until about 1 p.m. and the fire was level by then. But they did mop up and made sure the fire didn't spread to the bush or we'd have had a really bad fire on our hands," he said.

Reconstruction of events, he said, indicated that the fire broke out about 20 minutes after people left the hall. They had been playing bingo, using the bingo and public address systems that had just been installed. No cause has been found.

Floor Poured

QUALICUM BEACH — Final pouring of the new floor in the curling rink was made last week. The Rotary sponsored project is designed to provide year-round use of the rink, thus increasing recreational facilities in the area.

By 11:30 p.m., the fire was at its peak. It was spotted and reported by British Columbia's forest lookout on Mount Benson.

The building was insured for only about one-tenth of its value, Mr. Eastholme said.

Bylaw Fights Insects

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan council, at a special meeting Thursday night gave two readings to a bylaw designed to battle the mosquito threat in the Cortoon-Westholme area.

The bylaw requires owners or occupiers of real property to prevent infestation by mosquitoes or other noxious or destructive insects and to clear the property of such insects.

The third reading will be given at Wednesday's regular council meeting but aldermen decided to wait for final adoption while an injunction against aerial spraying by the municipality is before the courts.

Mayor Donald Morison said the bylaw was patterned after similar bylaws at Penikese and Kelowna.

Parish Builds Church

DUNCAN — The building of the new Glad Tidings Tabernacle church on Trunk Road is an old-fashioned community effort involving young and old members of the congregation which number 35.

The local congregation of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada began its work at the beginning of May and it is hoped that the first services can be held in the basement rooms this fall.

Because of the voluntary labor, the cost for the structure will be kept to a minimum of about $30,000. The mortgage money is being raised through the church's headquarters at Toronto.

Pastor Rev. Gordon Falconer said the parish would have a 20-year mortgage. The project superintendent, a teacher at Mount Prevost junior high school, and a member of the parish, is the only paid man on the job.

He designed the building, prepared all working drawings and works side by side with other parishioners. The building is 36 feet wide, 90 feet long and 26 feet high, not including basement facilities for Sunday school and a chapel. The church will seat 200 people.

Oldest voluntary laborer is 66-year-old George McInnith. Another of the regular volunteers, Alfie McDames, a Chemainus sawmill worker, said the building of the church was a sacrifice for the members of the parish as far as the raising of the money and the many working hours were concerned.

Mr. Lewis said that every day four men put in about four hours each and the women members of the church provide refreshments. However, the latter will help with the finishing work when the cedar shake roof is completed.

Socreds Choose Mayor

Strachan Starts Cowichan Drive

DUNCAN — For the past 17 years, the Socred government in British Columbia has failed to recognize its obligation to the province's Indian people, said Robert Strachan, NDP candidate for Cowichan-Malahat, Thursday.

He made the comment during a visit to Cowichan Indian band's new housing development in the Boys Road area.

It was the kickoff for his campaign to win his seat as MLA which he has held for the past 17 years. Mr. Strachan is confident that not only will he win but that he will end up with a greater majority than in 1966.

He said a campaign was like a horse race — "it is not won until it is over. However, there is no indication that I have lost any support. I am very optimistic. After Aug. 27, I shall again be the MLA for the Cowichan-Malahat constituency and because I am no longer the provincial leader of the NDP party I will be able to concentrate more on the constituency."

Referring to the Indian housing development, which, since 1967 has resulted in the construction of 33 new houses, Mr. Strachan suggested the necessity for better co-operation between the federal and the provincial government which, he felt, would be possible without changing existing laws.

He said: "For instance, I cannot see why the provincial government should not accept the responsibility for the maintenance of roads in the housing development."

"A great part of our road construction money comes from general revenue and the gasoline tax as well as the sales tax, both of which are also paid by Indian people, are 25 per cent of the provincial general revenue."

"There are also the natural resources which originally belonged to the Indians. If we cannot provide those basic services for the Indians, then I think we are still way back in the last century. They are citizens of this province and they should get these services."

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney swamped all opposition by taking the Nanaimo Social Credit Constituency Association nomination on the first ballot with 55 of the 59 votes available during a nominating convention in the Tally Ho Thursday night.

His opponents were marine surveyor Mike Murray and vocational school automotive instructor Harvey Brooks.

Until 30 minutes earlier, Mayor Ney told friends that he was undecided.

He said he intended to fulfill his term as mayor so that he could keep election promises made two years ago. The term ends at the end of this year.

GOOD RECORD

Mayor Ney said that despite a good record of provincial expenditures in the area, including Cedar and Pearson bridges, hospital expansion and highway paving, there was still much left to do.

He said the two-lane Island highway was outdated and a four-lane highway was needed.

He added that he would press for a promenade construction in Departure Bay.

"That recreational area is one of the best but not too much has been spent there," said Mayor Ney.

NO POLICY

Municipal Affairs Minister Don Campbell said Canada was one of the few nations without a highway policy.

The Liberals had promoted North Vancouver Island roads as possible Trans-Canada Highway extensions during the federal election. But they immediately reversed that attitude when the elections were over, he claimed.

More Beds for Extended Care

Hospital Building in Sight As Expansion Stage Set

Greater Victoria's long-criticized hospital construction program was showing signs of life Wednesday.

In the morning, the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service set the stage for almost $5,000,000 in expansion.

In the afternoon, the Capital Region hospital board approved a site for construction of a Saanich Peninsula hospital. It also approved building of temporary accommodation by St. Joseph's Hospital for 50 sub-acute-care beds.

The B.C.H.I.S. move meant

Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Priory would be able to share an additional 350 extended-care beds.

The two major hospitals are to get about $4,000,000 in beds.

with the priory at Oakwood in store for the remainder, at a cost of about $800,000.

Allocation of the beds was approved some time ago by the regional hospital board.

B.C. APPROVAL

Final approval must come from the provincial government before the hospitals can call for detailed drawings.

The 24-acre site approved by the board for building the acute- and extended-care hospital is on Mount Newton, Cross Road between the Patricia Bay Highway and East Saanich Road.

FOR REST HAVEN

The hospital, which will have 75 extended-care beds and 60 to 75 acute-care beds, will replace Rest Haven Hospital.

The site was chosen by the hospitals advisory committee, a body which came in for considerable praise Wednesday from Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

CONCERN, CRITICISM

He said there had been public concern and news media criticism of what had seemed to be a lack of action, but that progress was beginning to show itself.

"At this time it is evident a lot of things are falling into place," he said.

COMPLEX PROBLEMS

Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen, chairman of the board, said the advisory committee, under chairman Dr. A. C. Pickles, had worked extremely hard and had faced problems "of tremendous complexity."

The hospital is to serve North Saanich, Sidney and Central Saanich, an area which is expected to have a population of 20,000 by 1981.

ACCESSIBILITY

The site was chosen largely because of accessibility. It is within half a mile of a future traffic interchange and is about seven minutes' driving time from either Sidney or Brentwood.

A Central Saanich trunk sewer is to be installed just to the south.

Trudeau Orders Telegraph Probe

Prime Minister Trudeau has ordered an investigation of CP-Canada Telecommunications' decision to reduce hours of service in its Victoria office.

This was learned Wednesday when Mr. Trudeau's personal secretary, Henry Allen Lawless, replied to a telegram of protest sent by Victoria city council last week.

After acknowledging receipt of the protest, also by telegram, Mr. Lawless added:

"I have been asked by Mr. Trudeau to obtain further information and to report to him following which we shall communicate further with you."

Two other replies to the city council's telegrams — sent to three cabinet ministers and the area's two members of Parliament, David Gross and David Anderson — were also received.

R. M. Ross, special assistant to the minister of transport, said the minister had passed the council's complaint to CP-Canada Telecommunications, and went on:

"Ian Sinclair, president of Canadian Pacific, has replied giving reasons for the reductions and assures you that the new arrangements will not impair in any way the public message telegraph service available in Victoria."

Mr. Sinclair also sent a telegram to city council with copies to the prime minister, the three cabinet ministers, and the two

MPs. In it he repeated word for word the first public announcement of the reduced hours and, word for word, the same assurances as Mr. Ross.

Replies have not yet come from the other two cabinet ministers or the two MPs.

Council's protest resolution, proposed by Ald. Robert Baird and passed unanimously, said the city "especially dependent on reliable communications and it needed as many alternatives as possible because of possible disruption by labor strife, natural disaster and other adverse circumstances."

Victoria Chamber of Commerce has also protested the decision, president Clare Copeland said Wednesday.

The Larsens of Nanose Bay are made of stern stuff but they don't feel like pushing their luck. So they're going to sell their boat and buy a trailer.

They fulfilled their lifelong dream of sailing the Pacific. What they didn't bargain for was being captured by Chinese communists and almost being captured two other times by communists or pirates.

They didn't bargain for almost a month of gale-force winds and sloppy weather which kept them soaking wet for its duration.

They didn't bargain for a typhoon which hit them between Formosa and Saipan with 125-mile-an-hour winds.

"The typhoon lasted for 24 hours," Mrs. Larsen said Wednesday at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf. "The boat keeled over at one point and lay in the water for an hour. We thought we were lost for sure but it finally righted itself."

The Larsens didn't bargain for days of limping around Asian waters with a temperamental engine or for sailing back to Vancouver Island with a split Genoa and no engine power.

Mrs. Larsen summed it up Wednesday.

"We've done what we set out to do. We sailed the Pacific," she said, "and that's that. We're going to sell the yacht, buy a trailer and do any future travelling in it."

Mr. Larsen nodded assent. He said the custom-built yacht Simulous, which he ordered in Hong Kong, cost about $28,000 there and was worth about $45,000 here.

He has some questions for the manufacturer about the engine he's been fighting with almost ever since he took delivery of the yacht last fall.

The Larsens are heading for their home in Nanose Bay. They're hoping to see their son Ronald, 22, soon. He fishes out of Prince Rupert on his boat the Ocean Venture.

He was raised on the water. His parents fished together for 30 years until they retired last year and decided to have their yacht built.

They have some good memories of their trip.

They spent a month at Laoang in the Philippines last winter.

"The hospitality was unbelievable," Mr. Larsen said. "When we were asked out for dinner, and it was often, the hosts brought the dinner to us if we weren't able to go."

"When we left, the mayor came to say goodbye and a Catholic priest, Father Prottin Artega, prayed for us and blessed the boat," his wife said.

But the bad memories they'd just as soon forget — being imprisoned by the communists, chased by pirates.

"And in some places the poverty and the bad food and the bad water just sickened us," Mrs. Larsen said.

"It's certainly good to be back in Victoria."

Birds Make Comeback

COURTENAY — Some years ago a pair of barn swallows decided that an electric light fixture in the porch of the Glacier view Senior Citizens Home in the Comox Valley was an ideal base for a nest.

Whether the mother thought the heat from the bulb would help her in her incubating duties, or the pair just liked the idea of a floor furnace is not known. In either case, they were frustrated because the staff refrained from turning on the light while the swallows were in residence.

So for years the swallows came back each spring and their activities were of great interest to the residents.

There are disadvantages, though, to having birds constantly shuttling back and forth in the porch, and this year it was decided that the couple had had free rent for long enough. The old nest was torn down in the hope of discouraging them.

Not a bit of it. They decided the old nest had served its term anyway and that it was time for a new one. They proceeded to build it and are now in process of raising their second hatch.

build a platform under the nest which protects the window below, and keeps the porch a little tidier.

Crater-pocked Martian terrain is shown in Mariner 6 'close-up'.

Photos Depict Mars As Bleak as Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 6 televised spectacular close-ups of tortured terrain on Mars Thursday night, scenes of crater-riddled desolation strikingly similar to landscapes on the moon.

The tiny space voyager, on a mission to end centuries of speculation over whether the mysterious red planet would support life, skimmed to within 2,130 miles then sent Earthward a string of most-detailed-ever photos.

The profusion of huge jagged craters, many with smaller craters inside, seemed to indicate that if Mars has life at all in the areas pictured it could be only minute.

The shots showed thin canal-like lines, what appeared to be mountainous highlands, precipitous scarps, meandering rills believed to be cracks, and scattered rubble — all similar to photos of the moon.

The area pictured was a dark equatorial band that some scientists had thought might have vegetation because it changes color seasonally. Another theory is that the change is due to sunlight hitting rocks at a different angle at different times of the Martian year.

The televised picture show was confusing as viewed on monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Initial pictures were an hour late due to trouble in running the spacecraft's signals through a computer.

The relay delay was due, a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, to a missing element in the signal sent from the spacecraft that made a computer unable to process the pictures.

The first shot received, about 6:30 p.m. PDT, showed an area of Mare Erythraeum, a bleak desert area pocked with craters, the largest two or three miles across. The whole shot covered about 50 miles.

The spacecraft's two cameras, one with a telescopic lens to show objects as small as a football stadium, were programmed for 12 pictures each. They were aimed at equatorial deserts and dark areas that some scientists believe could be vegetation.

The equatorial belt was chosen for its variety of Martian terrain features.

Later pictures in the series also were heavily marked with craters. No. 9 showed one deep, with a smaller one inside. No. 10 looked as if pepper had been sprinkled on it, showing two quite large pits, perhaps five miles across.

A spokesman said that examination of more distant pictures taken by Mariner 6 on Wednesday disclosed a crater 300 miles across, with

Film Shows 'Magnificent Desolation'

● Next moonwalk can be doubled, Armstrong says, Page 6

HOUSTON (AP) — Spectacular color pictures taken by men on the moon were released Thursday by the space agency and show why the Apollo 11 astronauts called the lunar terrain "magnificent desolation" with "a stark beauty all its own."

The pictures show an eerie, unreal world with a coal-black sky and rugged grey terrain that turns almost white like snow where the sun reflects off it.

In a six-minute color motion picture film shown to television viewers Thursday night, Armstrong and Aldrin were shown saluting the American flag. The camera was shooting pictures at the rate of one frame per second, making the moon men's movements look like an old-fashioned movie. Their movements were fast and jerky on the film.

Tel Offer Finds Cool Reception

By DON COLLINS

It may not be good enough.

This was the warning from telephone workers in Victoria Thursday night as they reacted to the formula hauled by their own leaders as a means of ending the B.C. Telephone Co. strike.

Ken John, a spokesman for the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers in Victoria, said initial reaction to the proposed agreement was "rather disappointing."

"If all we're going to get is what we've been told so far we're going to get, there is a chance the membership won't go for it," said Mr. John, president of the federation's plant local here.

He was quick to add, however: "We haven't heard the full details yet. And that may well change the picture."

Those details, contained in the agreement signed in Vancouver Thursday by union and company officials, will be spelled out at a

Presidential Hopes Dashed by Mishap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Theodore Sorenson, a long-time adviser to the Kennedy brothers, said in a television interview Thursday that Edward Kennedy recognizes his presidential prospects have been "damaged, if not destroyed" by the tragic auto accident he was involved in last month.

Sorenson said Kennedy felt that if he had continued to be available for the presidency, it would "add to more hate mail, more conflicting pressures, more speculation as to his motives. He simply would be more comfortable out."

Wheat Pricing In New Crisis

LONDON (CP) — New anxiety over a heightening transatlantic clash on wheat selling prices was reported in Canadian quarters following the European Common Market decision to push up export subsidies immediately to match previous price cuts by both Canada and the United States.

Senior officials of the major wheat-exporting countries meet in a Canada House conference hall today in an attempt to end the market steering and competitive price slashes. There had been hope, at least among Canadian authorities, that the Common Market would not implement higher subsidies before the conference opened.

The concern among these authorities was that the Americans, confronted by this fresh price challenge from Europe, might initiate another round of price cutting to maintain an

What Is a Woman?

Oldest Question Posed For Court's Decision

LONDON (AP) — The son of Britain's former chief Boy Scout has asked a court to decide whether the beautiful model he married six years ago is just one of the girls or is really a man.

A lawyer said Arthur Cameron Corbett, 45, contends that tall, raven-haired April Ashley, 34, is a man and their marriage should be annulled. He said Miss Ashley insists she is a woman and will oppose the suit.

The case raises tremendous legal and medical questions, including "perhaps the oldest question in the world — what is a woman?" James Comyn, Miss Ashley's lawyer, told Justice Alan Orr Thursday.

Miss Ashley began life as George Jamieson and shipped out as a deckhand on a British merchant ship after leaving school. But she had herself legally declared a woman following a series of sex-change operations in Casablanca in 1960.

As April Ashley — 34-24-36 when she was a popular London fashion model — she met Corbett, heir to Lord Rowallan, former chief Boy Scout and governor of Tasmania.

Comyn told the court Thursday the case would involve a great deal of expert evidence concerning Miss Ashley's medical condition at various times. He asked that the hearing be put back about a month from the scheduled Nov. 10. Justice Orr withheld decision.

Three Safe, Two Die In Cave-In

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — Using hands and the only shovel available, workers rescued three men from a mine cave-in, where two other men died Wednesday, 240 miles west of Edmonton.

Rod McLeod, 56, of East Coulee, Alta., and a man from Germany were killed. Their bodies were recovered a short time after the accident. The second man's name was not available.

The cave-in occurred as the men prepared to place timber in an excavation, 13 feet deep into the side of a hill, when a section of the hillside collapsed. The section was about six feet thick and estimated to weigh about 30 tons.

'No Impairment' In Wire Service

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson said Thursday night he was satisfied telegraph service would be satisfactory when the Victoria office of CP-CN Telecommunications reduced its hours today.

Mr. Anderson said he received a copy of a telegram from CPR president Ian Sinclair to Prime Minister Trudeau, saying, "The arrangements made will not impair in any way the public message telegraph service available in Victoria."

The telegram from Mr. Sinclair said a traffic survey completed recently showed there was "virtually no public message traffic" between 8 p.m. and 7 a.m. on weekdays, or between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. on Saturdays or all day Sundays.

All delivery and sending of telegraphs as of today during those hours will be handled by the Vancouver office, the telegram said. This means by telephone, with no toll charge to the sender.

By Saanich Liberals

NDP Earmarked As Principal Foe

The Liberal party in Saanich Thursday night acclaimed its candidate and chose the NDP as the main election opponent in a riding long held by Social Credit.

North Saanich lawyer Louis Lindholm was the unopposed nominee before about 100 people in the Royal Oak junior high school auditorium. Accepting the nomination, he told his audience that an NDP government would be "an unmitigated disaster" for B.C.

It was apparent before nominations opened that Mr. Lindholm would take the nomination without a contest, to the annoyance of at least one outspoken Liberal in the audience.

ABSENCE HIT

Roy Henley interrupted from the floor to protest the absence of a second nomination, and put forward Claremont school principal Joseph Lott's name.

Mr. Lott, who had been named earlier as a possible candidate, quickly declined the nomination. Mr. Henley continued aloud to disagree.

'LAST NIGHT'

Mr. Henley said later that he would support Mr. Lindholm, but he would have liked to see an "open" nomination with more than one candidate. "I knew last night about this," he said.

Mr. Lott declined to say when he decided not to run for the nomination, citing "job responsibilities" as part of his reason.

The three main speakers singled out the NDP as the opponent in the campaign to be fought on lower Vancouver Island by the "Liberal team."

FEDERAL MAN Federal MP David Anderson said the Social Credit party had been in power too long, but "the main opponents are going to be the NDP."

Oak Bay candidate Allan Cox, MLA in the last Legislature, told the meeting "the fear of the NDP is catching fire."

Life Restored to Smoke Victim

Dog getting mouth-to-mouth respiration is tiny Chico, overcome by smoke Thursday during fire in Drake Hotel. At left, Chico's owner, Mrs. Betty Townsend, holds him while Mrs. Pat Bell applies mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Then Mrs. Bell listens for Chico's own breath. Finally, revived Chico snuggles gratefully against his owner. Fire Capt. Robert Smirl said no one but Chico was hurt, although there was $20,000 worth of fire and water damage to Johnson Street hotel. Everyone was alerted and taken to safety. Capt. Smirl said one couple "couldn't see the stairs for the smoke." He said he believed careless smoker touched off fire.

Exactly 32 Years Later

CFB Deputy Closing Navy Career

Capt. Frederick Frewer, deputy base commander of CFB Esquimalt, will retire Aug. 18, 32 years to the day after his enlistment as a cadet in Toronto.

Capt. Frewer told the Colonist Tuesday night that he had no plans for after retirement, other than to stay in Victoria, "which the family has grown to love."

He said he and Mrs. Frewer would go to London this fall to visit their son, Christopher, 21, who is studying art there. Another son, Barry, 23, is with the naval reserve here. Sandra, 17, plans to attend the University of Victoria this fall. Matthew, 11, and Timothy, 6, are students at Glenlyon Preparatory School for Boys.

The family will move in mid-August from Belmont Park to their own home at 930 Foul Bay Road.

Capt. Frewer came here five years ago as chief of staff to Rear Admiral W. M. Lamlymore, then flag officer Pacific Coast.

A native of Toronto, the captain took his initial training with the Royal Navy. He returned to Canada in 1940 to join the destroyer HMCS St.

Isolation Methods Tested

By BILL STAVDAL

Teaching methods of psychiatrist Dr. Phillip Ney—including a version of his controversial isolation system—have been used with disturbed children in three Greater Victoria schools for the past year.

Dr. Ney was praised Thursday by the principal of Victor School and by Dr. Giuseppe Multari, former school psychologist for Greater Victoria.

Dr. Ney stirred controversy this week in a proposal for a research study with emotionally disturbed children at McTavish elementary school in Saanich school district. The study, which was approved by the school board, involves a "time-out booth" for isolating children who disrupt the class.

SIZE STUDY

Dimensions of the booth remain unclear, though district superintendent Robert Price mentioned two feet by six. Trustees will give further study to the time-out booth.

Greater Victoria school board recently rejected Dr. Ney's research project in a closed meeting. The time-out booth was mentioned this week as the main reason for the decision.

Dr. Multari, who leaves this month for a new post in his native Italy, said Thursday:

'UNWARRANTED'

"I think Dr. Ney was misunderstood. Having read his original proposal, I think the alarm is unwarranted."

"The idea of a cubicle is an excellent one, and has been used in many places in the U.S."

Dr. Multari said the isolation area could be as simple as a three-sided study carrel in which an upset child could cool off.

NOT PUNISHMENT

Screened-off areas of the type advocated by Dr. Ney were used last winter in classes for emotionally disturbed children at South Park and Oaklands schools, said Dr. Multari.

"The idea of a cubicle should be entirely divorced from punishment," he said.

Edward Sullivan, principal of Victor school for retarded children, said Thursday that he supported the work of Dr. Ney at the school during the past winter.

BREAKTHROUGH

There was no isolation area, although it had been proposed and he had endorsed it, said Mr. Sullivan.

"At first, my staff and I were dubious about Dr. Ney's program, but when we became aware of the positive change which took place in some of our more aggressive, hyperactive or disturbed children, then we realized that here was something in the nature of a breakthrough in the treatment of disturbed children," said Mr. Sullivan.

The principal also works at George Peakes Clinic and the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium.

TO SETTLE DOWN

Mr. Sullivan said he doesn't know what will become of the time-out booth proposal at Victor school now that the Greater Victoria school board has rejected the idea.

Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Saanich school board, said Thursday that the board planned to go ahead with Dr. Ney's program, and added that the time-out booth was not intended as a punishment cell.

"It's a place for an upset child to settle down when he can't cope with the group, or they can't cope with him," said Mrs. Parrott, a former teacher.

Otters Try Out B.C. Waters

The sea otters are back.

At about 5 p.m. Thursday, 19 female otters and 10 males were released near Bunaby Island, 220 miles northwest of Victoria. Dr. James Hatter, director of the B.C. fish and wildlife branch, said, "It all went off like clockwork. They got in the water and were cleaning themselves and swimming around like they belonged there."

Dr. Hatter said one otter was obviously in poor health and was not released, but the others were in fine shape.

The area where the animals were released is dotted with reefs and shoals. It

The otters are from herds in the Aleutian Islands. Nineteenth-century fur traders hunted them into extinction in B.C.

Although the animals are in good health a couple of men will watch them for a few days to see how they disperse up the island, Mr. Blood said. Their survival in B.C. waters will depend upon whether or not they are left alone. The B.C. government, with co-operation from B.C. Indians, intends to keep them under strict surveillance.

Thirty more otters were released in the Pacific 25 miles north of Aberdeen, Wash. Five were taken by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to be donated to Tacoma's Point Defiance Zoo.

Death Accidental

More Care Urged With Heavy Lifts

A coroner's jury Thursday brought in a rider that more caution be used in making heavy lifts after ruling that the death of shipyard plater William Liggett was accidental.

Death resulted from a fractured skull when Mr. Liggett was struck by a 20-ton block after lifting rigging snapped as a 63-ton crane cab was hoisted into position. The accident took place July 22 on a self-loading logging barge at Esquimalt Graving Dock.

The jury recommended that "greater precaution should be taken in the methods employed during the lifting of heavy loads upon floating structures which are subject to movement or list."

In testimony metallurgical engineer Ralph Barrer said he had inspected the weld which had been holding the lug at the top of the lifting gear and found it to be a good quality commercial weld.
